SENATE IS STIRRED BY HOT DEBATE OVER MEXICAN SITUATION

Senator Fall, of New Mexico, Demands Passage of His Resolution to Give Full Protection to Americans

BACON URGES SENATE NOT TO ACT HASTILY

Fall Criticises Administration, Stone Favors Armed Invasion to Protect Americans and Their Rights

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Senator Fall, of New Mexico, today called up his resolution for the protection of American citizens in foreign countries. It refers to conditions in Mexico. Chairman Bacon, of the foreign relations committee, demanded that it be sent to that committee, so that its terms might be carefully weighed.

Senator Fall asked that it be passed at once, asserting that it was thoroughly understood by every senator.

BACON CONSERVATIVE.

Senator Bacon insisted that the people of the United States are in a grave position of responsibility, "at this time, and any enunciation of principle such as this should be thoroughly considered."

Senator Bacon asked if the resolution did not mean that the United States should send an armed force into Mexico to protect American citizens.

Senator Stone, reviewing certain condition in Mexico, declared he would favor sending an armed force.

Senator Williams maintained that a citizen of the United States has no constitutional rights in foreign countries. Amended, he thought, such a resolution ought to be passed "to strengthen the arm of the secretary of state."

Resolution in House Asks for Intervention

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Representative William H. Murray, of Oklahoma, well known as "Alfalfa Bill," introduced an elaborate set of resolutions today, in which he invites the senate to concur, directing intervention in Mexico if order and peace are not restored within thirty days after President Wilson issues a proclamation to that effect.

Murray's resolutions characterize Provisional President Huerta as a "usurping marauder, a black-handed murderer, and his regime as founded upon treachery, duplicity and murder."

CABINET MEETING DELAYED.

The regular cabinet meeting slated for today did not take place because at the last moment it was discovered that most of the secretaries were out of town. President Wilson denied himself to callers and remained in his study, taking up state department reports and papers on the Mexican situation and considering the proposed Nicaraguan treaty.

Changes in the plans of Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, now hurrying north from Mexico City, that he will continue from Havana to New York by sea, instead of landing at Key West and proceeding by rail to Washington, are expected to make no difference in the time of the ambassador's arrival.

The conference at which Mr. Wilson is to lay before the president and Secretary Bryan a first-hand report of the situation in Mexico, upon which some important development may be based, probably will not take place before Saturday.

Meanwhile the situation, so far as the United States is concerned, seems to be unchanged.

Roosevelt Nominated For Mexic Ambassador

(By Associated Press.)

DENISON, Tex., July 22.—A telegram to President Wilson, recommending the appointment of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt as ambassador to Mexico, protection to American citizens in Mexico, and steps by United States to go to the assistance of our sister republic," was sent from here last night by a special trainload of Americans who have just made a trip through parts of the Rio Grande valley.

Its signers numbered fifty-four. They did not give their home addresses, but signed as "citizens from Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri and other states." They have been investigating land interests along the Texas-Mexican border.

No Demonstration Wanted by Japan

(By Associated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, July 22.—Japan, through its charge d'affaires here, has suggested to the Huerta government that it will not sanction any demonstration upon the arrival of the Japanese minister which might partake of an anti-American character. The charge d'affaires made the request some time ago, however, that his government was pleased at the manifestations of Mexican friendship.

Wire communication in a roundabout way has been established between the capital and Laredo. The first telegram in many months from Laredo was received late last night, being sent by the citizens there congratulating President Huerta upon the progress of his administration.

The disappearance of the rebels from the railroads to the east and west of San Luis Potosi has enabled the authorities to reopen the lines to Aguas Calientes and Tampico. The rebels on the main line of the National railway have moved farther south, however, and were reported last night at Rocas, the first station north of San Luis.

WAS MARY PHAGAN KILLED WITH BLUDGEON?

WHERE THE TROUBLE LIES

BLOODY STICK NOW IN POSSESSION OF FRANK'S ATTORNEYS

Was Found on May 10 by Two Pinkerton Detectives on the First Floor of the Pencil Factory

DEFENSE TO CLAIM NEGRO WIELDED THE INSTRUMENT

It Was Sent to Chemist Outside of State for Examination—Subpenas Issued for State's Witnesses

In the possession of the defense of Leo M. Frank is a bloody bludgeon, with which it will be claimed at the trial, in all probability, that James Conley, the negro sweeper, struck Mary Phagan over the head while she battled on the first floor of the National Pencil factory for her life.

While it has been known for weeks that the defense of Frank will try to pin the crime on the negro, the claim that any weapon other than the negro's hands and the cords placed about her neck, were used, is an absolutely new development to the public, although the bloody stick, about an inch in diameter, has been in the possession of the defense since May 10.

It is said that it was found in the factory on that date by two Pinkerton operatives, L. F. Whitfield and W. D. McWorth, who at that time were conducting a systematic search of the factory.

According to the story, which has come to The Journal on excellent authority, on May 9, after city detectives, factory employes, various private sleuths and quite a few curiosity seekers had searched for nearly two weeks without finding any new clues to throw light on the tragedy, Whitefield and McWorth, two of the Pinkerton operatives, who are on the "silent force," never appearing before the public, went to the factory for a new examination of the big building, which was the scene of Atlanta's most sensational tragedy.

They started on the second floor, where the state maintains that Mary Phagan met her death, and spent the entire day going over that floor.

By the next day, May 10, the detectives had reached the third floor of the building. They went back by the boxes upon which Conley says he sat while waiting for instructions from the factory superintendent. Some ten or fifteen feet past the boxes and considerably past the elevator shaft, by a door, and on top of some trash, the Pinkerton men found the bloody bludgeon, right by the spot where the part of a pay envelope with the name Mary Phagan written upon it lay.

EXAMINED BY CHEMIST.

Evidently the defense of Frank considers the find of the two sleuths as important, for the story of the stick has been zealously guarded from the public. In addition, every effort to make certain that the fact of the existence of the stick would not reach the public, it was sent out of the state to a famous chemist, who made an analysis to determine whether or not the blood on the primitive weapon was that of a human or an animal. The examination is said to have shown it to be the former.

That Mary Phagan was knocked in the head as well as choked and her body thrown or carried down the elevator shaft on the fatal Saturday is believed to be the theory of the defense.

SUBPOENAS ISSUED.

An indication that the state thinks the trial of Leo M. Frank, charged by a grand jury indictment with the murder of Mary Phagan on April 26, will actu-

WATSON SAYS HE'LL INDICT MULHALL FOR LOBBY PROBE CHARGE

Former Congressman Denies "Lobbyist's" Accusations That While in House He Was Retained

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Martin M. Mulhall today retracted his charge against Representative Watson, of Indiana.

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 22.—"When Martin Mulhall, or by whatever name he is known, and I understand he has been known by many names, swears that he or any other man paid me $500 while I was a member of congress to represent the national manufacturers or any other organization, he lies, and I will have him indicted for it if I can accomplish that result," said former Representative James E. Watson, of Indiana, today.

The former representative was today in consultation with one of the ablest Washington lawyers to retain him to prosecute Mulhall. This was the result of the testimony given by Mulhall yesterday that he hired former Congressman Watson by paying him a retainer of $500, while he was still in congress.

This former congressman said today that he was retained in April after his term in congress had expired. He said that a committee of one hundred of the National Association of Manufacturers, created by a national convention in Indianapolis, wired to him asking him to come to Washington, and engaged him to take up the work for them. Mulhall, he declares, had nothing to do with his retention. He claims he has witnesses waiting in Washington who will impeach Mulhall on other vital points in his testimony. He is mad clear through.

The former representative has retained lawyers and intends to proceed against newspapers for libel that attribute to him conduct unworthy or corrupt as the result of his work, which he claims is above criticism. He named a prominent western publisher who in editorials had referred to him in what he contends is libelous phrase, whom he says he will proceed against, both criminally and civilly without delay.

It was learned today authoritatively that Mulhall was under investigation following his dismissal from the United States secret service, where he served under the name of "Michael," not Martin Mulhall, in the administration of President Harrison. Three investigations were held and each report was adverse to him and he was refused reinstatement.

The secret service has sent to the senate lobby committee, at the committee's request, the report of these investigations, which the committee has not yet made public. The report shows that Mulhall was twice an enlisted man in the navy. He has had a most remarkable career. Governor Levi P. Morton was once asked to appoint him as factory inspector in New York, but, learning of the record in the treasury department of investigation of Mulhall's conduct, asked for a certification of the record from the treasury department. On receiving it Governor Morton refused to appoint him.

NO CROSS-EXAMINATION.

Attorneys for the National Association of Manufacturers were not permitted to cross-examine Martin M. Hulhall, the confessed lobbyist, before the senate investigating committee.

When Attorney Robert McCarter, for the manufacturers, today suggested cross-examination of Mulhall on his story that former Representative James E. Watson, of Indiana had been paid a retainer of $500 and a weekly salary of

FELDER SHOWS HOW STATE CAN PAY ITS TEACHERS AT ONCE

Attorney General, Answering Governor Slaton's Inquiry, Says State Can Borrow Funds Up to $500,000

As the result of an opinion rendered Governor Slaton by Attorney General T. S. Felder Tuesday morning, the school teachers of the state stand a good chance to obtain a portion of their unpaid 1913 salaries within the next sixty days.

Replying to a series of questions propounded to him by the governor, Attorney General T. S. Felder rules that since the adoption last year of a constitutional amendment increasing the borrowing power of the state from $200,000 to $500,000 to supply temporary deficits the state "can unquestionably borrow for the purpose of meeting a deficiency arising because the appropriations exceed the revenues, provided, of course, the deficiency is caused by the necessary delay in collecting the taxes of the year, and that the loan made for the purpose of meeting the deficiency is repaid out of the taxes levied for the year in which the loan is made.

"Prior to the adoption of the amendment it was very questionable whether a borrow could be made for the purpose of supplying a deficiency of the character you mention. We know, of course, that it was done, and while this was the executive construction of the constitution, it is extremely doubtful if the judicial department of our government would have followed such construction had the question been presented to it."

After receiving the attorney general's letter Tuesday morning, Governor Slaton said that he would transmit to the general assembly both his own letter to the attorney general and the latter's construction of the law.

Several resolutions have been introduced at this session designed to authorize the governor to borrow money with which to pay the school teachers and to meet other anticipated deficits. In the event the legislature authorizes a borrow Governor Slaton says he will go into the money market and negotiate a loan provided one can be obtained at a reasonable rate of interest.

Answering another one of the questions put to him by the governor, Attorney General Felder says:

"Under the constitution as amended I think money can be borrowed to meet appropriations which have been made for the institutions of the state, if at the time there is a deficit in the treasury caused from the necessary delay in the collection of the taxes of the particular year in which it is proposed to make the borrow, and that the loan so made can be repaid out of said taxes when collected. In other words, if it would be legal at the time to pay a particular appropriation were the funds then actually in the treasury from the collection of the taxes levied for the particular year, then the collection of the taxes may be anticipated and the money borrowed to meet the deficit. Under the constitution as it stood before the amendment the loan could not be made for any purpose except to meet a casual deficiency."

ALL GOVERNMENT CLERKS MUST PAY THEIR DEBTS

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Clerks in the government departments either must pay their debts or relinquish their jobs. The latest department to emphasize this order is the war department, and an order signed by Secretary Garrison is being handed to all the employes today. The order says that "creditors and collectors will be denied acces to employes" during office hours, and adds:

Report of Inspection of Atlanta Postoffice Filed—Early Changes Expected

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 22.—The inspection of the Atlanta postoffice has been completed and the report is now in the hands of First Assistant Postmaster General Daniel C. Roper, awaiting his consideration.

As a result of the inspection it is stated on reliable authority that Postmaster Hugh L. McKee and Assistant Postmaster DeWitt C. Cole will be succeeded within thirty days by officials to be named by the postoffice department.

Senator Hoke Smith will recommend the nomination of Rolling Jones as postmaster, and the assistant probably will be picked from among the clerks on the eligible list, as the place is covered by the civil service regulations.

While First Assistant Postmaster General Roper today declined to discuss the report of the inspectors, who made a careful and painstaking investigation of the Atlanta office, it is understood that the report charges both McKee and Cole with general lack of proficiency in the management of the office, and recommends an immediate change for the good of the service.

Postmaster McKee was in Washington last week in conference with the first assistant postmaster general, and it is reported that he came to defend himself against the charges of the inspector. Mr. Roper stated today, however, that Mr. McKee stopped in Washington en route to New York only to pay his respects to the officials of the department.

"I haven't taken up the report on the Atlanta office," said Mr. Roper. "I cannot say when I will reach it. But I hope to give it consideration at an early date. The same is true of the report on the Savannah postoffice, which also was inspected."

Postmaster McKee's term ordinarily would not expire until next year and the tenure of the assistant postmaster ordinarily is given indefinite periods. Mr. Cole came to Atlanta as assistant postmaster shortly following Mr. McKee's appointment. Prior to that time he had served as postmaster at Marietta, where he now lives.

In the event First Assistant Postmaster General Roper agrees upon the report against Messrs. McKee and Cole as it is believed he will do, the "buck" will be passed along to Postmaster Burleson. If he follows the usual course he probably will ask for Mr. McKee's resignation as he did in the case of H. S. Edwards, the Macon postmaster.

Should the resignation be not forthcoming, the usual procedure would be for the postmaster general to recommend to the president the appointment of a successor, and the confirmation of the man named by the president would act as an ouster against Mr. McKee.

The investigation of the Atlanta postoffice was ordered some weeks ago by the postoffice department, as was indicated in the dispatches. It was predicated immediately upon charges of inefficient service, lack of discipline among the clerks, and general dissatisfaction with the service in Atlanta.

Postmaster McKee was out of town Tuesday, and Assistant Postmaster Cole was not in his office when called early Tuesday afternoon.

Consequently it was not possible to obtain at the postoffice any local information bearing on the situation.

EMPLOYES OF CITY HALL NEED AN "EMERGENCY" FUND

For What? Well, if You Went Up Against the Appeals for Church, Charity and Miscellaneous Contributions for About a Week, You'd Know, According to Walter Taylor

Be it resolved, by all the employes of the city hall, that some influential member of council be requested to introduce a resolution providing an emergency fund on which said employes may draw when "touched" for contributions to church, charity and private penury.

Not that the employes are niggardly or indisposed to give to church and charity, but the requests are so many, that if they gave to all they would exhaust their salaries.

"It's a fact," said City Clerk Walter Taylor, as he flipped a letter across the desk in which a "thank-you-in-advance" South Carolinian besought financial aid in rebuilding his church. "If we responded to every request for donations we would have no money at all at the end of the month. Now that man says his church was struck by lightning, and that if I will help him to rebuild it, the Lord will bless me. What I want to tell him is that if the Lord struck it by lightning, He probably knew what He wanted, and the man had better let things be. But instead, I am sending him a polite answer declaring there are so many churches in Atlanta it takes all my money to help them along.

"And this is just one of many. That's what comes from getting your picture in the paper," concluded the genial clerk with a sigh.

"Why," he resumed with new impetus, "they come in here trying to sell us ice cream festival tickets in the dead of winter, when the heat's all off, and we are shivering in our shoes. Or some man wants us to buy tickets for recitals, tells us we're sure to enjoy it because his little girl's going to recite.

"One woman proffered tickets the other day, asking me to buy. She said I would have a lovely time because her little girl was going to recite 'I Am Mad.' I told her the little girl might not be, but that all of us would surely be if we had to sit through it, and the lady left in a huff.

"But the climax of them all was Monday. Just after council adjourned, a wavering-footed man elbowed his way to the front of the crowd, unrolled a dirty scroll and said: 'Is there a man in this crowd who will lend me a dime until tomorrow on this piece of poetry?

"It was three stamas long, but nobody responded, and with muttered maledictions on their lack of poetic appreciation, the would-be borrower meandered off with his rejected collateral.

"Yes," added the clerk, "we need a special contribution fund."

COUNCIL APPROVES A PUBLIC COMFORT PLACE

Captain Clayton at Work Estimating Cost of Construction of Structure

With the passage of a resolution by city council, Monday afternoon, authorizing the mayor to appoint three council members to act with the chamber of commerce in investigating the project of a public comfort building and reporting to council upon the suggestion—with that action by council, the city government gave its formal recognition to the important movement.

A meeting of that joint committee will be called as soon as Mayor Woodward names the councilmen who are to serve on it. And at that meeting the first steps will be taken to work out an effective plan for financing the matter at once, and if central location for the building itself will be selected or the selection will be taken in hand.

L. C. Green is the chairman of the chamber of commerce committee appointed specially for this movement.

"Captain Clayton, the city engineer, already is at work on estimates of cost of construction, etc.," said Mr. Green, Tuesday. "He will be ready to appear before the committee with definite figures as soon as the committee is ready to hear from him."

Mr. Green has sent out voluntarily a large number of inquiries to Atlanta citizens, submitting the plan for a public comfort building to them for their comment, and has received 1,000 or more responses, all commending the movement highly. These responses have come from professional men, business men, and citizens in every other walk of life.

Mr. Green's fellow members on the committee are J. K. Orr, J. Lee Barnes, Joseph A. McCord and P. C. McDuffie.

Haralson Bleckley, the architect, has submitted to the chamber of commerce committee tentative plans for the structure. Every member of the committee is interested actively in the matter, and they and other enthusiastic co-workers are inclined to believe that early success is in sight and that the building may be in process of construction before the end of the year.

MILITANTS BUSY WITH TORCH OVER IN ENGLAND

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 22.—A militant suffragette "arson squad" early today set fire to a large unoccupied mansion at Perry Bar, near Birmingham. It burned to the ground.

Placards were posted in the vicinity bearing the words, "Asquith is to blame!" "Release Mrs. Pankhurst!"

A Farm Finder

"For years we had yearned for a little farm in the country, where the children could get the pure air of the fields, especialy our little Mary, who has never been a strong child, but until a few weeks ago we never thought we could afford to buy one.

"One day my wife read a Journal Want Ad telling of a man who had a nice little farm, within three-quarters of an hour's ride of the city, and, on investigation, we discovered it was just the place we had so long wanted. The price was lower than I had ever dared hope for, too. So now we are all fixed in our new country home and Mary is showing the good effects of the country air already."

Here in healthful, happy surroundings a family is living the kind of life which is ideal for its members, and all the time the farm is growing in value. Eventually it will make city lots.

It pays to read Journal Want Ads every day.

CITY DETECTIVE WORKED WITH BURGLARS SAYS CHIEF

Lanford Claims One of His Men Joined Gang in Order to Trap Them

That a member of the city detective force has been working with the gang for some time past as one of its members, under instructions from headquarters, was the interesting admission made Tuesday morning by Chief of Detectives Lanford, although the chief declined to reveal his identity. The officer was assigned to this delicate task when it was thought that the gang could be caught at petty thievery of suit cases and such work. But it soon developed that they were bigger game, and their smaller misdeeds were recorded and passed until they could be caught at more serious undertakings.

Chief Lanford stated that the men had been stocking a store in an adjoining county with the goods that they stole and that their thieving furnished the store with all the wares it has. The police will get a search warrant and raid that store immediately, said he.

In the capture of two burglars at their work Monday night the city detectives consummated plans which they have been casting and recasting for six weeks past, and landed the leaders of a gang whose operations have been followed almost in detail, according to Detective Chief Lanford. R. W. Miller and W. Reeves are the names of the men caught. A third escaped. Detectives learned in advance of their plot to rob the store of R. A. Gober at 30 Carroll street, and surrounded the store and waited for hours in order to catch them "dead to rights" and insure conviction.

REEVES FORMER SLEUTH.

Reeves formerly was a railroad detective and at one time was train marshal of East Point. Not very long ago he was tried for killing a youth in the railroad yards of Atlanta while he was on duty there one night. He was convicted, sentenced to eight years in the penitentiary, appealed for a new trial, got it, and was acquitted. He pleaded self-defense.

Detective Chief Lanford now claims that Reeves has admitted to him "pal" that he killed the boy because the boy caught him looting a freight car.

"Dead men tell no tales," the chief says Reeves remarked to his pal.

By means unknown to the gang detective headquarters has been keeping in close touch with its work, says Chief Lanford, and has tried twice previously to catch its members at work, but each time was frustrated by unforeseen circumstances.

NEARLY CAUGHT BEFORE.

About three weeks ago four detectives secreted themselves at Chamberlin's store, West Hunter and Chestnut streets, and were within fifteen feet of four burglars, one of them an expert safe cracker, when the burglars started to force their entrance to the store. Just at that moment an alarm clock in a neighboring negro nursery rang, and the burglars fled, thinking it was an alarm against them. About a week ago the detectives were following them on another "job," when the burglars grew suspicious, and Reeves, doubling in his tracks, encountered one of the sleuths face to face.

The detectives claim to have known practically all of the movements of the gang's members for almost three weeks past. The officers declare that numerous suit case robberies in Atlanta railway stations were done by these men. They lay some freight car robberies and grocery store raids against them, too. But the arrest of the men has been withheld until they could be caught in the very act of committing a robbery. Now the police authorities believe they have all the evidence that they need to secure the conviction of their prisoners.

STOLEN GOODS RECOVERED.

Four suit cases, alleged to have been stolen, were recovered after the arrests Monday night. The police say Miller when caught was wearing part of the contents of two suits cases stolen from a LaGrange physician in Atlanta on July 8. The detectives expect to recover much more loot.

"We may turn up as much as several thousand dollars' worth of goods stolen by these men before we get through," said Chief Lanford.

Notwithstanding the rigid questioning to which they were put after their arrest, and which continued nearly all night, neither of the two men arrested had admitted anything, Tuesday morning.

TRIAL POSTPONED.

The preliminary hearing of the cases against the men before Recorder Broyles will be deferred until the detectives have finished their search for stolen goods.

Miller's home is near Red Oak, Ga., on the College Park-Fairburn suburban car line. Reeves lives at 13 Stonewall street.

STORY OF CAPTURE.

By the use of calling for someone to open the store (at 30 Carroll street) and wait on them at a late hour, the robbers secured entrance without necessity of breaking in. Edward M. Davis, a youth of sixteen, employed by the store owner as assistant and night watchman, responded to the call, knowing that the detectives were watching.

Immediately after arriving in the store, however, he was hit upon the head and dazed so that before he could raise to outcry a hand had grasped his mouth and he was being bundled into the ice box. There, in the frigid cold, he remained until after the arrests were made and the detectives were about to leave with their prisoners. Someone heard a muffled shout at that critical moment, and a search for the youth located him in the ice box. He was so stiff with cold and cramped with confinement that he had to be carried across the street to his home.

The police learned of the plot to rob the store by overhearing two of the men as they talked of their bold plans. Detectives Harper, Davis, Sturdivant, Garner and Chewning were assigned to the case. The detectives stationed themselves around the store at 8:30 o'clock Monday evening. At 11 o'clock three men appeared and called for the owner of the store. When young Davis appeared, Miller asked for a soft drink and some smoking tobacco.

The youth got his keys and accompanied the trio to the store. He was struck as he turned on the electric light. No sound was heard, but the detectives noticed that the light, flaring on, was turned out again immediately. Then they closed in on the store. Miller, standing at the entrance with a club in hand, was surprised and captured by the detectives before he could warn the others. Reeves was caught inside, and the third man ran, diving through the window.

SAYS UNCLE SAM SHOULD BUILD ROADS IN ALASKA

Secretary Lane Advocates Opening Up Country's Immense Resources

CHICAGO, July 22.—There should be about 900 miles of government-built railroad in Alaska, in the opinion of Secretary of the Interior Franklin K. Lane, who is here on his way west for an inspection of Indian reservations and several irrigation projects.

"I believe that Alaska should be aided as far as possible in opening up her immense resources," the secretary said. "The first step should be a government-owned railroad to the seaboard from the coal fields. Let congress appropriate money for the first Alaskan railroad and there will be the next two years, a colonization movement to the northern territory which will pale into insignificance the rush to the government lands within the nation proper.

HE IS LOOKING FOR RUSSIAN'S ESTATE

From far-away Russia comes a letter to Governor Slaton inquiring if he or any other official in the state of Georgia has any knowledge of a large estate left by a Russian emigrant named Trooshkovsky.

This letter, written by W. Thooshkovsky, one of the prospective heirs, was dated St. Petersburg, Russia, June 25. It was penned in a neat hand and employed the best of English. The writer stated that some years ago an emigrant named Trooshkovsky came to America from Russia; that he acquired considerable property and died here.

It is not known what part of the United States the Russian located, and for this reason his relatives are writing the governors of the various states in an effort to obtain information concerning his estate.

ATLANTA HORSES ARE GIVEN DRINKING FOUNT

Atlanta's horses at last have a "locker club" of their own. It is right on the city's main street, a place where they can gossip socially during the long hot summer days, the while they sip cooling liquid, but nothing stronger than the old Adam's ale.

Manager A. R. Keen, of the Georgian Terrace hotel, conceived the idea of establishing a drinking station for animals on the northeast corner of Peachtree street and Ponce de Leon avenue.

The fount is under the trees, on one of which is nailed a big sign, "Free Water for Your Horses and Mules." A man is there all day with a sponge with which to cool off the heads and necks of the animals.

COTTON IS OPENING AROUND QUITMAN, GA.

Corn Acreage in Brooks County Is in Excess of Cotton

(Special Dispatch to The Journal)

QUITMAN, Ga., July 22.—J. W. Thrasher, of Hickory Head, brought a cluster of fully matured and opened cotton bolls to town yesterday afternoon and declared he could pick at least 150 pounds of cotton from his field.

Cotton is beginning to open in other fields where conditions have been favorable, although this is the first brought to town, and this means that the cotton picking season will begin within a week or two, certainly by August 1. It is always said that one can tell nothing about the cotton crop until it is gathered and sold, but every indication points to a fine crop in this county. The corn crop will be exceptionally large and the farmers are priding themselves upon the fact that the acreage of corn is much larger than the cotton acreage in the county.

At the annual meeting of the Brooks County Agricultural club at Hickory Head yesterday the reading of the crop reports revealed that on the thirty-three farms of the club members there was a total of 954 more acres of corn than of cotton. President G. Stanley in commenting on this said he doubted if any thirty-three farms in Georgia selected from any particular neighborhood would show as great a preponderance of corn acreage over cotton.

Battle Raged Here 49 Years Ago Today

Forty-nine years ago today, Tuesday, the battle of Atlanta was being fought. At noon, July 22, 1864, the first gun was fired. In a few moments artillery was booming, and the Battle of Atlanta was on.

South Moreland avenue today traverses the major part of that day's battleground. Much of the fiercest fighting was done just beyond where Inman park is now, east of Hurt street, where Battery place gives out upon the Georgia railroad. Between Battery place and DeGress avenue stood the Hurt house. It is the fighting around that house, at 4 o'clock in the afternoon, that is portrayed in the canvas of the battle cyclorama at Grant park.

From noon until dark the battle lasted. Not less than 5,000 men were killed on both sides. Two corps of Hood's Confederate army were pitched against McPherson's whole army in blue, while General W. T. Sherman, whose headquarters were where the home of A. L. Waldo stands today on Cleburne avenue, held his Army of the Ohio and Army of the Cumberland in reserve. The federal troops stretched on around the north side of the city through Piedmont and Ansley parks and across Peachtree street to Howell station on the Western and Atlantic railroad; but none of these troops beyond Ponce de Leon springs engaged in the fighting that day.

The forty-ninth anniversary of the battle was observed silently and reverently, Tuesday, by those of its survivors who live now in Atlanta—particularly by the survivors of the Forty-second Georgia regiment, recruited in and around Fulton county, which assailed the federal position at the Hurt house that day and were driven back with heavy loss.

The anniversary brought to the minds of many the suggestion voiced some time ago that the fiftieth anniversary of the Battle of Atlanta be observed in some manner next year.

Yes, This Is July, Says Weather Man

Sure this is still July, but you would hardly recognize it as the same month of last Friday and Saturday when the mercury was flirting around 98 even in the shadows. The change is certainly pleasant, isn't it? The showers did it, they have cooled things off remarkably. The thermometer made a brave effort to come back, but old mercury seems to have lost his fighting eye. Seventy-six degrees was as high as it ever got Tuesday even in the middle of the day.

Senate Bills

The following bills were passed by the Georgia senate Tuesday:

By Mr. Smith of the Ninth—To amend the charter of the town of Edison.

By Mr. Tarver—To extend right of suing for damages in case of negligent homicide to all relatives of deceased and to his estate.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

By Mr. McGregor of the Nineteenth—To empower the governor to declare positions of trustees or directors of state institutions vacant, and to appoint a successor.

SYMPATHY FOR BURWELL FROM THE LEGISLATURE

Both houses of the state's general assembly took occasion Tuesday morning to extend their sympathy to W. H. Burwell, speaker of the house of representatives, in the death of his sister, Miss Rosa Burwell, who passed away about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon at her home in Griffin.

The house adjourned shortly after meeting, not to convene again until the hour set for the *joint session to can*vass the votes on Senator Bacon's election. The senate adopted resolutions of sympathy proposed by Senator John T. Allen.

Golfer Holes Out In One Stroke By A 290-Yard Drive

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO July 22.—A world's golfing record was established in the eliminating play of the western championship tournament, at the Homewood Country club today by E. P. Allis III, of Milwaukee.

The young man holed out in one from the first tee, the first time in recorded annals of the game that such a feat has been accomplished at the distance —290 yards.

Allis' drive was perfect, according to experts, who said the ball would not, have rolled six inches further had it missed the cup.

"Chick" Evans, western champion, scored a two on the eighteenth green, his brilliant work netting him a 73, the best thus far of the tournament.

35 CAGED CONVICTS BURN TO DEATH IN MISS. CAMP

Were Trapped on Second Story When Stacks of Hay Caught Beneath Them

(By Associated Press.)

JACKSON, Miss., July 22.—Trapped by flames in the second story of an antiquated convict cage, the first floor of which was used to store hay, grain and molasses, thirty-five negro prisoners were burned to death at the Oakley convict farm, twenty miles from here late last night.

With the flames rapidly eating away on the only stairway leading to the second floor, the entrapped prisoners frantically tore at the heavy bars that covered the windows, but to no avail.

Their screams brought the two night guards to the scene before they had seen the flames, and soon other prison attaches hurled to the "cage."

Their efforts were futile, however, as the flames drove them back each time they attempted to liberate the men. At last they tsood aghast when slowly the frantic screams of the burning convicts died away as one after another succumbed to the flames. Finally all was quiet, and the smell of burned human flesh permeated the air as the flames devoured the last of the building.

BUILDING OLD STRUCTURE.

The building was constructed ten years ago of lumber taken from a discarded penitentiary; there is no firefighting apparatus at the farm and the first floor of the building was filled with inflammable material. Farmers living nearby hurried to the scene to help the two guards—the only two on duty at night—and other prison attaches, but they were of no assistance, as the fire burned too rapidly. It was only a few minutes from the time the fire started until it had claimed its awful toll.

The convicts all were worked in the cotton fields of the state far inland were housed in the "cage" at night. Among them were some desperate criminals serving long sentences.

The Oakley farm is one of the most important in the state, the state prison hospital being located there. No other building was in danger, however, as the destroyed "cage" was some distance from other buildings.

The fire started under the stairway on the first floor. The origin has not been determined.

SAVANNAH POSTMASTER FIGHTING FOR HIS JOB

Goes on Visit to Washington to Talk Over Matters With Postmaster General

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 22.—There is much interest in Savannah in the visit to Washington of Marcus Baker, postmaster at Savannah. It is believed Mr. Baker has gone to Washington to see about keeping his position. His office has undergone a very rigid investigation at the hands of a postoffice inspector and it is believed the report made was not entirely complimentary to the postmaster.

Mr. Baker stated before leaving that he was going to see Mr. Burleson, the postmaster general. It is believed he will take the position that Postmaster Edwards did in Macon, that he shouldn't be dismissed unless the president said so and he will present that view to the Washington postal department officials

SENATE PASSES BILL ON HOMICIDE DAMAGE SUITS

Bills on Granting Divorce and Rotating Judges Blocked by Committee

The state senate passed two bills Tuesday morning. One was a local measure and was approved in two minutes, the other was a general measure and was approved after two hours of continued filibustering.

This was Senator Tarver's bill which he says he has been trying for four years to make a law, the bill extending the right to sue in case of negligent homicide to all kindred of the deceased and to his creditors.

The bill was opposed by those whom the opposition characterized as "railroad lawyers" and was favored by the "damage suit lawyers," as named by the opponents of the measure. Senator Miller led the fight against the bill, speaking for forty-five minutes in favor of a substitute he offered designed to make Senator Tarver's bill less drastic. The substitute was voted down.

Senator Miller characterized the Tarver measure as "a bill to benefit the damage suit lawyers of the state." He said that it was not only a monstrous travesty of justice but might become a serious tragedy as well.

Senator Allen also opposed the bill on the grounds that it merely widened the field for damage suits, a field, he said, which was greatly overworked already.

When the chair called for the vote on the bill it was passed 28n to 11, as needed by Senator Smith.

According to the bill, any relative of a negligent homicide may sue for damages and his creditors may sue for the amount of the indebtedness.

REPORT ON FINANCE.

Several interesting committee reports were received Tuesday morning.

The committee on finance recommended for passage the bill to provide on what conditions foreign fire insurance companies doing business in the state which reinsure all their policies may withdraw from the state.

The general judiciary committee reported favorably on Senator Harrell's bill to create notaries public for the state at large; on Senator Tyson's bill to amend Section 1037, paragraph 4, of the code of Georgia, making husband and wife competent but not compellable to testify for or against each other; and on Senator Sweat's bill to authorize the execution of a lost or destroyed deed to be proven.

The same committee reported adversely on Senator Bush's bill to appoint a stenographic reporter for the grand jurors of the counties of the state; on Senator Bush's bill providing that a divorce is granted only on statutory grounds; and on Senator Stark's bill to rotate the judges of the superior court by the North Carolina plan.

The two latter measures have excited considerable interest. A minority report may be filed on the divorce bill.

THIRD DEGREE" BILL.

Senator Searcy's bill directed against the use of "the third degree," was reported favorably by the penitentiary committee. By the provisions of this bill no officer of the law can turn over a prisoner to any person not qualified by law to receive him. Neither is the prisoner allowed to be grilled by any person but the officer who has him in charge.

SHOP EARLY WEDNESDAY IT'S A HALF HOLIDAY

Weekly Half Holidays Meeting With Favor Among Both Merchants and Customers

Shop early.

Wednesday's the weekly early closing day for the clothiers and grocers and butchers and shoe men.

Take a little tip from this reminder—and get there before 1 o'clock, unless you can wait till Thursday.

The Wednesday half holiday for the workers in the retail stores has met with wide favor, not only among the employes themselves, but among the patrons of their stores. The latter find it entails practically no inconvenience to themselves to adjust their purchases to the half holiday, and it results in better attention on other days when the shops are open.

The Wednesday half holiday, preferred over the Saturday half holiday by those merchants whose trade is busy each Saturday, will continue until September 1.

JOSEPH A. JOHNSON DIED TUESDAY MORNING

He Was the Father of George E. Johnson—Resident of City 47 Years

Joseph A. Johnson, one of Atlanta's pioneer citizens, died Tuesday morning at 5 o'clock. He was eighty-six years old and for fifty-seven years had been a resident of Atlanta. He came here from Richmond, Va., and was connected with the manufacturing interests of the city.

He was a veteran of the Mexican war, having fought under General Scott, with the rank of sergeant. He was captain of the National Grays, of Richmond.

For a year and more he had been totally blind and feeble, but was confined to his bed for about three weeks only preceding his death. But a few years intervened between his death and that of his wife, to whom he had been married for fifty-five years.

He is survived by three sons, George E. Johnson, Orby Johnson and W. L. Johnson, and by two nephews, in Richmond, George and Charlie Crawford.

The funeral will take place at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the residence at 202 Luckie street. The pallbearers will be Captain Henry Jennings, Frank Whitley, A. Q. Adams, George H. Sims, James Hudson and Andrew Klassett.

The interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

10,000 CITIZENS FAIL TO RETURN PROPERTY

City Marshal Is Busy Sending Out Notices to This Effect

Ten thousand and more residents of the city have not turned in their property for taxation, according to the records in the city tax office. This was ascertained by securing a list of the patrons of the various schools, and by comparing this list with the tax digest for the year.

So the city marshal is now busy sending out notices informing the delinquents that they must pay their taxes, give good reasons why they did not return their property or, failing in this, they will be served with fi fas.

Every year the tax digest is checked by the city directory, but even this does not mean that the tax collector gets an accurate record, because many names do not appear in the directory.

The school list gets most of those, however, whose names do not appear. Frequently there are good reasons why the names are missing from the digest, some families moving into the city after the tax records for the year are completed; but by checking the digest by the school list, the city is able to keep tab on property owners.

COMMITTEE FAVORS BILL FOR CHEAPER TEXT BOOKS

House Calendar Is Crowded, However, and Bill May Not Come to Vote

Favorable report on the McCrory bill to authorize the state to print certain school books and sell them to pupils at cost was made to the house of representatives Tuesday morning by the house committee on education.

This was the second victory scored by Representative C. R. McCrory, of Schley county, originator of the movement to have the state print its own school books and reduce their cost materially.

Mr. McCrory's first victory was recorded recently when the house committee on education reported favorably upon his resolution that a joint commission be raised by the two branches of the legislature for the purpose of investigating the difference between prices of books and the corresponding book s elsewhere.

The well-informed surmise is that if the McCrory bill recommended Tuesday comes before the house for a vote it will stand a good chance of passage, but the condition is a big one, for the calendar of the house is crowded just now with much business. It is said that unless the McCrory bill is set as a special order there is small chance of it reaching the house at this session. And if it is not passed at this session, it would be futile, for the school books for the next five-year period are to be selected at the end of this present calendar year by the state school board.

The McCrory bill in detail provides that the state superintendent of schools shall select the text for copy books and fifth grade readers and primary histories; and that, after the state school board has approved those texts, the printing of them shall be awarded by contract to the lowest bidder in open competition; and that the printed books shall be sold to the school children at their actual cost of production.

M. RICH & BROS. CO.

Pre-Inventory Sales End in 8 Days

We are not "Bargain-Crazy"—Rich's and their clientele always put service and quality above mere price.

But with August 1st—and inventory—just 8 shopping days away, we must use high-pressure merchandising to get stocks down to bed-rock.

That's the reason for the many Bargains recently advertised; for the scores of low-price signs that dot the store; for today's half-prices:

A Clearaway of Cool Silks at 25¢

A stirring sale of fresh summer silks! Delightful qualities for street dresses, kimonos, girls' wash frocks and shirt waists. And to think that prices are halved! Bargains—because we won't inclose broken lines or short lots. Here are the items to appeal to every silk-wise woman:

59c messalines, 25c—Fresh, crisp silks, with rich, sheeny surface. Tan, maize, nile, olive, lilac, copenhagen, rose; 19 in.

50c China silks, 25c—Washable and fast colors. Rose, nile, maize, copenhagen; 27 in.

50c to 85c silk remnants, 25c—1 1-2 to 3 yard-lengths of solid color and fancy taffetas, messalines and foulards. All new silks and patterns—the short ends that have accumulated in the last fortnight's selling.

49¢ for New & Stylish $1 to $2.50 Silks

"Are these really $1.50 and $2 silks that you offer at 49c?" ask the incredulous. "How can you afford to do it?" We can't as a general thing. Neither can we afford to have broken lines cluttering up stocks for Fall. We've made a profit on these silk lines as a whole; we're willing to lose on what's left. Choose from silk chiffons, suiting silks, chiffon taffetas, Dolly Madison silks, novelties and many others.

Two big tables full in lengths from 3 to 20 yards. About all colors.

To Sell These Stockings Quickly, We have Slashed the Prices

Nothing wrong with the stockings, save that they are odd lots and broken lines that we won't invoice. So we empty the boxes and group the different lots on three tables at 29c, 49c and 59c. Stockings are variously of lisle and silk lisle, plain, lace and embroidered. Black, tan and a few white and colors. All sizes at each price.

29c; values to 50c.
49c; values to 75c.
59c; values to $1.25.

—"Merino" is an American imitation brought out to sell at 50c a yard. Being a clever copy of "Viyella", "Merino" has sold here quite freely.

—"Merino" is used for the same purposes as "Viyella"—negligees, shirts, pajamas and comfort garments.

—Of our stock of "Merino" we have just 16 pieces left. About 400 yards in all; too few to invoice. Tomorrow, therefore, all our 50c "Merino" flannels will be 25c

Natural Washed Rough-Dry Finish

75c

Though calendered to give a deceptively refined appearance, cheap linens after the first washing look like a rag. Not so these linens we offer tomorrow. They are the finest French linens; honest linens not masquerading under a false finish. They have gone through their tubbing; they are shrunk; they show the natural rough-dry finish. As they look no they will look forever.

Too many of these linens to invoice, so tomorrow we reduce stock by reducing the prices to half.

This artistic crepe toweling resulted. The fabric is cotton, crinkled and crepey like paper, though wonderfully serviceable. Printed in charming Japanese designs, all blue on white. Cotton towels 18x34 in. Hemstitched squares 20x20. Were it not for the Pre-Inventory sales the price would be much more than 39c.

(Needlework, Main Floor, Center.)

Fashionable 50c & 75c Laces at 29c

The laces that have sold so freely over our counters for 50c, 65c and 75c, have dwindled to one big table full. Rather than inventory and carry these laces over into another season, we'll clear 'em now at 29c.

Included are 12 to 18 inch flouncings in shadow laces, vals and filet laces; and 5 to 9 inch bands in filet and shadow laces. Choice 29c.

AUTO DASHES MADLY ON AFTER WRECKING BUGGY

Mrs. J. D. Huggins Injured Seriously—Reward for Motorists Is Offered

Demolishing a buggy and throwing its occupants out, an automobile hesitated just long enough to regain its momentum, lost by the impace, and sped away down Peachtree road toward Atlanta, Monday evening at 9:15 o'clock. Mrs. J. D. Huggins, wife of the superintendent of Ashford Park nurseries at Ashford station on Peachtree road, was thrown out upon her head. Her son, Hubert, aged twenty years, was thrown out also, but was not hurt. They were the only occupants of the buggy. In the automobile were two women and two men.

Cobb Caldwell, in front of whose home near Ashford station the accident occurred has offered a reward for the apprehension of the motorists.

"Such wanton carelessness is a menace to all life on the public roads," says he. "If these people are found, whoever they are, I will help to prosecute them."

Mrs. Huggins was conveyed to her home in the nursery park. It is not anticipated that her injury will result fatally, though her condition is serious. She and her son were returning from Chamblee when the automobile, coming up behind them, ran them down, wrecked the buggy, threw them out, and hurried on.

A joint committee from both houses has been appointed to deliver the invitation and only the acceptance of the senator and the setting of a date suitable for himself is awaited.

The general appropriations bill, of Crawford Wheatley, of Sumter, set as a special order did not come up in the house owing to the brief session. It will be put on its passage Wednesday.

HOME RULE OF FORESTS IS FAVORED BY BUREAU

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Home rule, in part at least, for users of the national forests, is the policy adopted by Secretary Houston, of the department of agriculture. In an order issued today he granted to settlers and other users of government forest land the right to a voice in forest government.

The regulation provides that whenever an association "whose membership includes a majority of the local residents using a national forest, or portion thereof for like purposes, shall select a committee, an agreement on the part of which shall be binding upon the association, such committee, upon application to the district forester, may be recognized in an advisory capacity on behalf of the association."

Furthermore, these associations are to receive notice of proposed action and have an opportunity to be heard by the local forester in fererence to any proposed changes likely to affect materially their use of the forests.

SUFFRAGETTE MEETING EXPLAINED BY MRS. PEEL

Atlanta, Ga., July 22, 1913.

Mr. Editor:

I am asking that you give this announcement place in your columns in order to avoid placing the Daughters of the American Revolution in an embarrassing position:

The Habersham chapter, as everyone knows, is preparing to erect a building on their lot on Peachtree street, which will be a very beautiful addition to that handsome thoroughfare and one of which the whole city will be proud. In order to increase their fund they have planned a series of entertainments from time to time, which have been generously patronized, and the last of which takes place this evening at 7:45 at Taft hall.

This will be an open discussion on the suffrage question, as one of the leading thoughts of the day. It must not be thought for a moment that the Daughters of the American Revolution are taking part in this discussion as an organization, or even as individuals. For instance, our last entertainment was a Mother Goose affair, but it was not intended that the public suppose we were all geese. Our next venture will be a presentation of some of the beautiful Indian legends, but it can not be inferred that we are Indians.

We hope all our friends will come out tonight. There will be some very bright thoughts exchanged, and a great deal of information disseminated, no doubt. The difference between a suffragist and a suffragette will be explained and many unique points taken.

Thanking you kindly, I have the honor to be,

MRS. WILLIAM LAWSON PEEL,
Vice President General N. S. D. A. R.

FORMER ATLANTIAN TELLS OF TRIPS INTO MEXICO

A. P. Rutherford Now of Houston Says Border Americans Sympathize With Rebels

That the border population of the United States is largely in sympathy with the rebels' cause in Mexico and would like to see them win, is the assertion of A. P. Rutherford, at one time a resident of Atlanta, here now on a visit to his wife's parents. Recently Mr. Rutherford visited Mexico on business. His home is in Houston, Tex.

Mr. Rutherford adds that the reason for this leaning toward the rebels consists largely in the method used to dispatch the former president, Francisco Madero. The border theory is firm, says he, that Madero was murdered in cold blood.

Also, says Mr. Rutherford, the rebels are more courteous toward Americans than are the federals, the latter showing their resentment that formal recognition has not yet been given to the Huerta administration.

"The abuse of Americans in Mexico is done almost wholly by the guerilla bands, the nondescripts who roam the country, looting as they go and fighting for neither side in particular," says Mr. Rutherford. He deplores the fact that the federal army includes a large proportion of young boys, thirteen and fourteen years old—mere children, armed with rifles, furnishing food for the rebels' powder.

As the representative of an engineering firm in Houston, Mr. Rutherford has had occasion several times to visit Mexico on construction work. His most recent trip was to Columbus, where he spent five weeks. He returned from there by way of Matamoras, crossing the border on July 4 into the United States. The battle in Matamoras had occurred just a few days before he arrived there. The rebels occupied the town at the time, and some federal skirmishers were to be seen even then on the hills near by. The rebels had looted the banks, that being their usual method, according to Mr. Rutherford, of obtaining war funds; but the American citizens in the town were not molested.

"The fighting down that way hasn't bothered me personally," says he. "My only worry has been in getting transportation."

Mr. Rutherford's last work was upon some irrigation plants. The fact signifies that notwithstanding unsettled conditions within the republic, there still are those who regard conditions as safe enough here and there to warrant further investment.

WARM WORDS EXCHANGED IN SENATE COMMITTEE

Lawyers of McRae, Ga., Have Argument Over Reinstatement Bill

In the general judiciary committee of the state senate Monday afternoon hot words were exchanged between certain lawyers of the Oconee circuit and William B. Kent, the Alamo, Ga., man who was disbarred from practicing law in the state in 1910 and whose reinstatement is sought by Senator Fred Kea, of the Sixteenth, in a bill to that effect which was before the committee.

Action on the measure was deferred until the next meeting of the committee.

Eschol Graham, a McRae lawyer, opposed the bill, presenting a petition signed by members of the Oconee bar circuit requesting that it do not pass. Graham charged that Kent was guilty of defrauding clients, altering court records, and other shady transactions.

Kent replied that Graham's petition was signed at a lawyer's barbecue at which 250 bottles of beer had been played some part in the signing of the petition. Graham declared that the petition was signed prior to the barbecue. He stated, moreover, that Kent had practiced law illegally since his disbarment.

Senator Kea said that he based his bill for Kent's reinstatement on the fact that he had won the support of the better element of the county and had been honored by several high offices. Kent should be given another chance, said the senator.

COUNCIL OVERRIDES TWO VETOES OF MAYOR

City Will Be Represented at Municipal League Convention—Other Matters

Two vetoes of Mayor Woodward were overridden by council Monday afternoon. The first was his veto of the Nutting resolution reorganizing the city tax office, which the general council overrode by a ovte of 18 to 7. The other was his veto of the resolution appropriating $5 to pay for an option on the Destructor company to build an electric generating plant in connection with the crematory within twelve months. This was overridden by council only, the vote being 15 to 2. The aldermanic board will vote separately on the motion to override.

A resolution appropriating $200 to pay the expense of two representatives of the city to the convention of the League of American Municipalities was passed by council only. The convention meets at Winnipeg, Canada, in a few weeks. Mayor Woodward is to name the two representatives.

A resolution appropriating money to employ two assistant weights and measures inspectors during the heated season, for the special purpose of inspecting ice weights, was passed by council only.

A resolution appropriating $850 to buy an automobile for the city electrician was passed by council only.

A resolution by Alderman Van Dyke appropriating $105 to install five sanitary drinking fountains at convenient places in the center of the city was passed by council only.

These resolutions carrying appropriations of money all go to the aldermanic board for separate action. The aldermanic board probably will concur in them all.

A resolution was jointly passed by council and the aldermanic board requesting the finance committee if possible to find $8,000 to pay the cost of extending a sewer which now empties into a branch leading into a pond from which the Atlanta Steel company supplies its boilers.

A resolution by Councilman Smith asking the legislature to amend the charter by giving council authority to regulate the inspection of boilers and elevators was passed.

A resolution by Councilman Shepard was passed, creating a special joint committee of three from council and three from the chamber of commerce to take up the question of a public comfort station, with a view of finding suitable location, obtaining estimates of cost, etc. The resolution named as the members of the committe from the chamber of commerce the following: L. C. Green, J. K. Orr and J. Lee Barnes. Mayor Woodward is to name the three members from council.

RECORDER BINDS OVER CARROLLTON PHYSICIAN

Tells Dr. M. W. Lewis That He Is a Menace to Society

Dr. M. W. Lewis, a physician of Carrollton, Ga., must answer in the higher courts of Fulton county for the charge that he brought to Atlanta a young woman of Carroll county and registered with her in an Atlanta hotel as his wife. Recorder Broyles bound him over from the police court Monday afternon and fixed his bond at $1,000.

The young woman was arrested in the hotel where they had registered Monday morning. A citizen of Carroll county, who came to Atlanta on the same train with the couple, reported his suspicions to the police. They found the young woman alone. Later they arrested the physician when he had finished an operation in an Atlanta sanatarium.

Though the young woman admitted the charge and made a complete confession of Monday's visit and two former trips to Atlanta, and though she acknowledged her confession to Recorder Broyles, the physician denied the charge, saying that he had registered himself and the girl as man and wife in order to protect her.

"You have a distorted sense of protection," said the recorder. "You should be dealt with as severely as the courts will permit."

The young woman's father, a planter of Carroll county, arrived in Atlanta Monday night in response to a telegram from Chief Beavers, and took charge of his daughter. Dr. Lewis had been the family physician for years, said he, and that was why he had been willing to trust his daughter to the physician when she came to Atlanta to have her teeth attended upon by a dentist.

"He is a menace to society," declared the father, referring to the physician, "and I intend to prosecute him in the courts."

WITH CARTOONIST BREWERTON AT THE FORSYTH

IN THE LOCAL THEATERS

A breathless audience packed the Grand theater Monday night and for nearly three hours gazed fascinated at the moving picture film of "Les Miserables." Not until the last flicker had died did a single spectator leave the house, for the production was one of the most thrilling and spectacular seen in Atlanta since "Quo Vadis."

Victor Hugo's masterpiece was given new life on the canvas. Readers of the book once more felt its gripping intensity, and those who had never looked inside the covers followed with ever quickening interest the fortunes of Jean Valjean.

The trivial offense which made him a convict, his thrilling escape, the pursuit, befriended by the old curate and risen to a high place and the mayorality of his town; how he confessed to keep another man from suffering for his own deed, the death of Fantine, and his second escape to fulfill his promise to care or he little girl, Cosette; his second betrayal by Javert and his second escape, the rebellion and the flight through the drains of Paris with the wounded Marius, to deliver him, her lover, to Cosette; Javert's repentance and suicide and the final death of Valjean—each scene was a play in itself.

Two little newsies came out of the theater and drew a long breath.

"Say," said one, "that Valjean was some guy, eh?" He expressed exactly what the audience thought.

The picture is a lengthy one, but never wearying. It is staged with a minute attention to detail, and must have cost a tremendous su mto produce. There is not a major or minor character in it that is not taken by some first-class actor, and each scene is a vivid replica of an actuality. In a word, it is complete.

Offering a number of new feats in the diving line John F. Conroy and his two diving girls thrilled the Monday audience at the Forsyth theater and will continue to show a few new feats from day to day. The work of this trio in the first place is new, secondly, the girls are attractive, and thirdly, the scenic effects and arrangements of the pool are excellent.

By means of a number of new and orginal dives the Conroy act eclipses the water performances of Kellerman, Ideal and Odiva, well known divers who in the past have made good on the local stage. In several of their dives all three are in the water at the same time, two diving from the springboards and the third from a suspended trapeze oevr the pool. Mr. Conroy also gave a demonstration of how exercise will develop the body.

Smith, Cook and Marie Brandon got away with the big noise of the evening in their farcical performance. Just to hear Smith and Cook in their idiotic conversation is well worth while, but in addition the trio come through with some of the best dancing ever staged here.

Toward the end of the bill a nattily dressed, fine looking young man appeared on the stage and before he had fingered his accordeon half a dozen times he had won his way into the heart of everybody in the audience. This was Deiro, the piano-accordeonist. He grinds out anything from grand opera to ragtime and gets away with it all. He had to stand for several encores before he could get off the stage.

Lester, the world famed ventriloquist, gave his usual clever performance, while Shriner and Richards made a hit with a number of songs and jokes. Jack Auger and his company of dwarfs in "Jack, the Giant Killer," will prove excellent entertainment for the children. The Beanos with a novelty gymnastic act get away to good adavntage as an opener.

Col. J. C. Woodward, College Park, Ga.

My Dear Col. Woodward: I am greatly pleased with the progress made by my son during his attendance of the past year at the Georgia Military Academy, and with the physical as well as mental development he shows. I am sure I could not have selected another school which would have been more satisfactory, and I only regret that the "time limit" of my church compels me to remove this fall so that I can not have him return.

I sincerely congratulate you on the school you have built up, and I hope for you all possible success in the future.

Very truly, J. S. FRENCH.

Chaingangs in Georgia

Breaking Rocks, Breaking Men, and A Death in Camp

Last Thursday night, a man slept chained to others.

Doubtless the drag of the shackle on his leg disturbed his rest.

In the cool of Friday morning he shuffled out of the convict camp.

Linked with clinking steel to others, he came through the woods to the rock quarry.

The guard unlocked the gang chain.

The man scrambled down into the pit.

Work started.

The sun mounted higher.

Its beams sought and found the laborers.

Men began to feel it as they toiled.

Twelve pounds is the weight of the ordinary quarry hammer.

Their's weigh forty-nine pounds at this quarry.

One, buying them for the county, said:

"Strength is not required to crush stone with these. They come down of their own weight. THE ROCK BREAKS."

YEA, AND SO DO MEN!

Forty-nine pounds to the hammer!

You could scarcely raise one.

Consider, then, what you do, when you force the man to do that which you could not endure.

Lifting this hammer—crushing stone with it when the thermometer registers nearly one hundred degrees.

And doing this at the bottom of a funnel-shaped pit of stone into which the sun's rays pour and beat enveloping in wave on wave of agonizing heat the suffering striped and shackled working men!

Friday each minute the heat grew worse.

The atmosphere quivered with it.

The quarry became a pit of torment.

From its depths, to his keeper, the man cried:

"I am sick."

The guard replied:

"You didn't say so this morning."

Later the man fell fainting at his work.

Stripe-clad, shackled men lifted him tenderly.

They carried him out.

Through the woods a jolting springless wagon bore the dying man to the convict camp, where he died.

The man had not been condemned to death.

He was only a misdemeanor convict.

The utmost punishment provided by your law for him was twelve months in the chaingang, six months in jail and a fine of one thousand dollars.

And you had no wish to kill him.

BUT THE MAN IS DEAD.

Across the ages rings the question of God:

"What mean you that you break my people to pieces, and grind the faces of the poor?"

Down the centuries comes the voice of Jesus saying:

"Woe unto you! for you load men with burdens grievous to be borne and you, yourself, touch not the burden with one of your fingers."

Do not deny responsibility for the man's death.

Your laws—our laws placed him in the convict camp.

Your servant, a public official, made him work the day he died.

He feared your lash—our lash.

God will require of you and of us his blood and the blood of others.

The Mexican Situation.

There is no occasion for surprise in the reports from Mexico forecasting an early collapse of the Huerta regime. It has been evident for months past that the provisional government was trembling on its treacherous foundations. The most it could hope for was a precarious tenure until the election next autumn when a new administration might be established by means at least nominally fair and constitutional. But now, it seems, the revolutionary forces are oversweeping every barrier; apparently it is but a matter of weeks or perhaps days when even his spurious title to power will be wrested from Huerta.

The provisional president essayed to be a dictator but evidently he lacks the qualities of which successful dictators are made. That he was a gifted soldier, no one could doubt; and he was also unscrupulous and as regards sheer doggedness of will, unbending. It was predicted, when he seized the presidency, that he would soon have the rebellion under heel. That very ruthlessness with which he was credited was regarded by some as a virtue which would scourge the country back to peace.

But there was little or nothing in Huerta to command popular confidence or support. His own followers knew the dishonorable paths by which he had risen to power. The world condemned the slaughter of Madero as inhuman and unclvilized. The new administration lacked moral strength to begin with and it was unable to muster physical strength to go on with.

The army became first indifferent and then, in many instances, openly hostile to the provisional president. Troops sent out to put down an uprising would go over bodily to the rebels. In these circumstances it was inevitable that the Huerta regime would eventually fall.

The wisdom of the United States' policy in declining to recognize so flimsy a pretense to government is now manifest. Such recognition could not have bolstered up a regime that lacked the first elements of stability. It would merely have proved embarrassing to our own country. What the immediate future of Mexico may be is beyond prediction. One thing, however, is certain; the Wilson administration has done well thus far to pursue a neutral and waiting policy toward Mexican affairs.

No, Alonzo, a barnacle isn't a tramp who sleeps in a barn.

What we want now is light on the prospect for a scuppernong crop.

The Proposed Nicaraguan Treaty.

The proposed treaty with Nicaragua whereby the United States would acquire the exclusive and perpetual right to build a canal across that country and would also assume a friendly supervision of its affairs seems to have won the approval of leading members in both parties of the Senate. Such an agreement would remove once and for all the possibility of foreign competition with the Panama canal, an assurance much to be desired; and furthermore it would give our nation a valuable naval base, together with several islands, in the Gulf of Fonesca.

In return for these advantages, the United States would pay Nicaragua three million dollars which would be applied to the upbuilding of the latter's public works and educational interests. This arrangement would be distinctly beneficial to Nicaragua whose development has woefully lagged because of a lack of funds and also the lack of any guarantee of a stable and efficiently administered government. Under the sympathetic protection and guidance of the United States, the latter difficulty would cease to exist. The Nicaraguans themselves appear heartily in favor of the proposed treaty. Indeed, their National Assembly has previously sanctioned a somewhat similar agreement that was advanced during the Taft administration and is now in special session to approve the new plan.

Senator Bacon, chairman of the foreign relations committee, who opposed the former proposition, is quoted as saying that the treaty now suggested is "entitled to the most careful consideration." Other Senate leaders, Republicans as well as Democrats, hold the same view, so that the administration's Nicaraguan policy is assured of a responsive hearing. Any such plan requires, of course, thorough and far-sighted inquiry; but it is evident that if the United States can secure so important a concession as the exclusive and perpetual right to the Nicaraguan canal route, without unduly involving herself in foreign problems, she should certainly do so.

The currency bill will come in time to make our Christmas purchases easier.

Teachers' Salaries.

One of the distinctly cheering omens of our time is the public awakening to the injustice and the folly of underpaying school teachers. From the discontent which this state of affairs is bestirring the nation over, a remedy is bound to spring. In the meanwhile, it is well to note the fact, recently established by the Russell Sage Foundation, that in the United States as a whole the average annual wage of teachers is only four hundred and eighty-five dollars, smaller than that of coal miners, factory workers and many unskilled laborers; and that in the South thousands of rural school teachers are paid less than a hundred and fifty dollars a year.

It is particularly worth while to observe Georgia's rank in this regard. Though there was an appreciable increase in the salries of our common-school teachers between 1911 and 1912, their average annual salary is now only two hundred and fifty dollars a year. This state stands forty-fourth on the roll of the Union in respect to teachers' salaries.

That record is lamentable enough but what shall be said of the additional fact that, under its present policy, the state compels its teachers to wait long months after their services have been rendered for the penurious salaries they do receive! For this latter condition, there is no excuse. The legislature can no longer afford to neglect a matter that concerns so vital a sphere of the people's interests. Some means whereby the teachers will be assured of prompt and regular payment should be devised without further delay.

The most feasible means yet suggested to this end is the proposed levy of a special school tax of one mill for the first year and of a fraction of a mill for the second year. A constitutional amendment making this possible would, we believe, be heartily ratified, if submitted to the people. It is to be hoped that the legislature will open the way for the solution of this urgent problem.

Never call any man a liar to his teeth unless they are false.

And many a man looks upon a dollar saved as a good time lost.

Maybe in time the Mexican dollar will be brought back to a peaceful circulation.

The Standard Oil Co. has had to pay the state of Texas $500,000, which ought to go some distance toward making up for the boll weevil.

The Atlanta Municipal Court Bill.

There was ratified at the last general election in Georgia a constitutional amendment empowering the larger cities of the State, if they so desired, to replace their Justice-of-the-Peace courts with a Municipal court that would banish the abuses which had crept into the older system and would also guarantee a fairer and more efficient administration of this important province of the law.

The changes thus allowed were limited to the centers of population because it was in them that the evils and shortcomings of the "J. P." plan were felt. The magistrates of country districts and smaller towns are chosen in Georgia, as they were in old England, largely on a basis of deserved honor and they serve for the most part from a sense of public duty, not for the purposes of gain. But the "J. P." system in such communities is vastly different from what it is in cities like Atlanta, a fact which was evidently appreciated throughout the State, if we may judge by the overwhelming majority of votes in favor of the amendment.

Through a bill introduced in the Legislature Monday, Atlanta now seeks to avail herself of the right to supplant her numerous and generally unsatisfactory Justice of the Peace courts with a single, well designed Municipal court. The three Representatives from Fulton county and the Senator from this district, Senator Huie, of Jonesboro, are all said to have pledged their support to this measure, so that it seems assured of passage at the present session of the general assembly.

Certainly there is no one piece of legislation which the Atlanta people are more earnestly desirous of seeing enacted. This city's Justice of the Peace courts are outworn and inefficient. In some instances they have been made instruments of flagrant wrongs and inhuman oppressions. This is not to be taken as meaning that there are not worthy men holding the office of Justice of the Peace in Atlanta, for, there are; but these magistrates themselves have testified to the inadequacy of the system and some of them were among the stanchest supporters of the amendment making a new and better order possible.

The Atlanta Bar Association, representing the conviction not only of its own members but of the general public as well, is unitedly behind the Municipal court bill for this city. The measure is admirably drawn to meet local needs. It should, and doubtless will, receive the legislature's unhesitating approval.

THE NEW RURAL SCHOOL

I. A RADICAL EXPERIMENT.
BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

A school without school books, without classes, without grades, without examinations, without punishments; a school where the children may not only whisper but may talk aloud, where there is neither reading nor writing nor arithmetic by such names, where the pupils never work but always play—such is the rural school at Rock Hill, S. C.

To school children it may seem to be only a bit of heaven by chance transferred to earth, but to educators and pedagogs it is intensely interesting because it appears to be a successful experiment pointing the way to the solution of the vexing problem of how to improve rural schools. It is hardly necessary to say that in this school the pupils do learn the three R's, even when they think they are playing and not studying. What is more important is that they also learn how to grow cotton and corn and beans and tomatoes; how to cook, how to sew, how to buy and sell, how to enjoy their lives and how to make homes happy.

This experimental school has been as successful as it is radical in its departure from conventional ideas of what a school should be, and of how it should be conducted. It was not conceived in an effort to support some one's pedagogic theory, for it is quite innocent of a theory. It was designed as an attempt to remedy the shortcomings of the ordinary rural school, especially in the south.

Between the Potomac and the Mississippi rivers there are, in round numbers, 59,000 rural schools. Forty thousand of these are of the one-room, one-teacher type. Seldom does one of these rural schools grow. The trustees, generally conservative farmers, usually employ a young woman teacher—the cheaper the better. More often than not she comes from a distant community. Her interest is but temporary and too often has none but the money inspiration. The school usually lasts but four, sometimes six, months. Such children as may be spared from house or field work are sent to the school. Next season a new teacher is employed, the work is begun as before, and the school has no chance to grow.

Many of these 40,000 one-room schools are housed in miserable shacks and huts unfit for swine. Few of them even remotely approach a sanitary ideal. Most of them are positively centers of infection for hookworm diseases, for tuberculosis, and on occasion, for epidemic diseases.

Many of the children who go to them hope to get away from the country and into the city as soon as ever they can grow up; others have no ambition at all. Only the exceptional child is content to build his hope upon improving his condition on the farm. Until recently none of these schools so much as attempted to give any instruction that would be of practical benefit on the farm, or in the farm home. The few that did make the attempt did it in such a fashion as to make of the fascinating mystery of plant growth as dull a tale as ever was six times six is thirty-six. The Boys' Corn clubs and Girls' Tomato clubs have changed this in hundreds of communities, but much is yet left to be done.

The dreamers who dreamed Rock Hill school first endeavored to see clearly what the farmer must do all his life long, and what the farmer's wife must do all her life long. Then they resolved to make a school regardless of convention or tradition that would train the farmer children for their future work, and train them not only to do that work well but to have joy in it. And they saw, too, the awful loneliness of the farm, that thing that drives farmers' wives to insanity, and they resolved that this school should train children how to amuse themselves, how to find enjoyment in the society of others, of themselves and of books.

As this school experiment was to be made not to determine a laboratory theory, but to be of use in practical, everyday life, the utmost care was taken in the initial steps.

First of all, it was evident that the school trustees would not be willing or able greatly to increase the amount of money to be spent on a school session, so it was decided to retain the one-teacher idea. The problem then was how to enable one teacher to make her school a live and vital factor in the community life.

The Peabody board on November 2, 1910, appropriated the money for the project. As it was a new experiment it was decided that the appropriation should be liberal, but yet not beyond the bounds of any school district. The sum of $600 was set aside to do the work. A home was found for the new school on the edge of the campus of Winthrop college at Rock Hill. It was an old farm house, lately used by the college carpenter, but just such a house as might be found or easily constructed in any country district. The three rooms of the ground floor were utilized, and there was a veranda or gallery running all around the house—a valuable part of the plant as it later developed. With the house was a tract of land to serve as a garden with enough land for a generous playground. On one side was the college, on the other the open country.

At first the children were not farm children. They came from the home of cotton mill operatives in the nearby mill town, but they were all from country families who but lately had left the farm for the mill. There were also a few children from the families of the college faculty. That was for only the first short term, from March to July, 1911.

When the time came to open the school again in the fall the trustees from a rural district came in of their own motion and asked if they might send their children to the new school, saying they would take the money they usually had paid to a teacher for a four-months' school and pay a driver who would bring the children to the school in the morning and take them home at night. The proposition welcome as it was to those who would experiment on rural children, was accepted and proved to be so successful that still another district asked to do the same thing. But this would have destroyed the one-teacher idea, and it was declined. The result is that not one but dozens of school districts are now planning to follow in the "new way."

The school was born in the brain of Dr. A. P. Bourland, secretary of the Conference for education in the South. When the time came he received valuable help and suggestions from W. K. Tate, the state supervisor of rural schools for South Carolina. They decided to place the experiment school at Winthrop college, where it could have the friendly care of President D. B. Johnson and others of the faculty.

All of these men recognized that in blazing new paths they must needs have a hardy pioneer, and they searched carefully for a teacher to whom to entrust the experiment. Their choice happily fell upon Mrs. Hetty B. Browne, then a teacher in the city schools of Spartanburg.

• • •

They talked with Mrs. Browne, discussed with her the familiar shortcomings of the rural school, went over their plans in a general way—a discussion of the essentials of teaching by the senses—and left the matter to her. It was as if they had written on a bit of paper: "There never was before in the whole world such a thing as a school. You have the first school. You have the pupils. Let them learn."

The Conning Tower

SUMMER NIGHT.

Softly dance sweet singing zephyrs,
Through the trees, through the trees,
And a new born silver crescent
Greets the breeze, greets the breeze.

In the heaven, shining brightly,
Twinkle stars, twinkle stars,
And the white clouds, slowly sailing,
Look like bars, look like bars.

Zephyr, crescent star and cloudlet,
Make hearts light, make hearts light,
Fill our thoughts with pleasant fancies,
Pure and bright, pure and bright.

Singing zephyr, greeting crescent,
Twinkling star, sailing bar,
Make our vison heavenly glimpses,
Without mar, without mar.

Many the ode that Miss Burke has inspired, but none so fair in all the world as this elegiac, by William Wallace Whitelock:

O Mary Burke, I love your work,
It's so delightfully irregular—
It's easy as smoke to rhyme like Pope,
But it's hard to be original and jocular.

Speaking of poetry and the desire to shirk, as Quintus Horatius Flaccus *used to do (cf. yesterday's Col*onnade) we t. g. p. in printing "Song of the battle ship Texas," by a new contrib., Elson B. Cahn, aet. 7 1-2 years:

The battle ship Texas is going to sea,
The Spaniards are firing at you and at me,
But we are brave and we are strong,
And we still sing a gallant song.
If we die it is for our own country and the people therein,
So come on fellows be brave and fight and try to win,
for the battle ship Texas is going to sea.
The Spaniards are firing at you and at me.
Come let's try to be like Washington who never told a lie,
So come boys we have a fleet, too,
Hurrah, hurrah, we have something to do,
for the battle ship Texas is going to sea,
The Spaniards are firing at you and at me.

THE DIARY OF OUR OWN SAMUEL PEPYS.

July 16.—Slept ill, and at my office I am querulous with the printer-men, who, Heaven knoweth, do their best. Read this day the first chapter of "Angel Island," wrote by Mistress Inez, my Mistress Inez Gillmore, that is, and found it to promise well, and I hope I shall like it. Home early and slept all the afternoon, which I never could do when Gretchen or Martha was with us, what with the great clatter they did make, but Lena is very gentle and quiet, and in all things as she should be. In the evening with my wife to seek out a dwelling-apartment, but find all too costly and I fear I must go upon the lecture platform to augment my income.

17.—Up by times and at my office all the morning, labouring. Read further this afternoon in Hugh Walpole's "Fortitude" and found therein something he quotes, but from what source I do not know, but I did transcribe it and shall set it down:

"But, concerning the Traveler who would enter the House of Courage there are many lands that must be passed on the road before he rest there. There is, first, the Land of Lacking All Things—that is hard to cross. There is, Secondly, the Land of Having All Things. That One Hath Possessed. That is a hard country indeed for the memory of the pleasantness of those earlier joys redoubleth the agony of lacking them. But at the end there is a Land of ice and snow that few travelers have compassed, and that is the Land of Knowing What One Hath Missed. . . . The Bird was in the hand and one let it go. . . . That is the hardest agony of all the journey. . . . but if these lands be encountered and surpassed then doth the Traveler at length possess his soul and is master of it. . . . This is the Meaning and Purpose of Life," which I deemed fair words and heartening.

The Inez Milholland Alumni Association will hold its first meeting at Madison Square Garden, Monday, July 21. The meeting will be called to order by John Fox, Jr., and Lord Curzon will make a short address.

SWEET ALICE

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.
(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

"O don't you remember Sweet Alice, Ben Bolt,
Sweet Alice so good and so true?"

There is not much being said about her nowadays. Naturally she never gets into the newspapers; she is not that kind. And the novels of the day seem to pass her by for more thrilling types, although once she was quite the vogue. But for all that she is still doing business at the old stand.

I refer to the simple, loyal, lovable girl who loves just one boy, the one who is to be her husband, the one into whose career all her life is to be gladly poured.

I would not dare these days to say she is the highest kind of woman. She couldn't be a suffragette nor a leader of any "movement." She is just girl. When she grows up she is just woman. She is not famous nor in anywise conspicuous.

But she is the kind men go crazy over; the kind to live for and die for.

And while the great and grand woman-leaders of our time are being garlanded and feted I may be allowed perhaps to hand this one little flower of appreciation to Sweet Alice.

Yes, I know it is sentimental; it is gush. But the heart that won't gush once in a while is pretty dry. I don't covet it.

The loyal devotion of one man to one woman is still the thing that today excites the most universal admiration.

There are all sorts of loves; but the love that is stuck to is the best.

Nothing in McKinley's career so popularized him as his tender and constant attention to his invalid wife.

Before Pickett led his braves to that fatal charge at Gettysburg he wrote to his sweetheart, and in telling her how he loved her alone he found something that nerved him to courage.

It may not be much to inspire and ennoble a man, to make him unafraid to tell and to live the truth, to keep him clean, "without fear and without reproach," but that is what the Sweet Alice girl can do.

I like to think of the army of lovers in the world. Just a week or so ago the college towns were buzzing full, but no incidents of commencement time meant more than those walks where they went a-mooning, hand in hand in the summer night, and talked of how passing wonderful it was that they should have found each other and that love came. If there's any more important business than making love I don't know what it is.

I like to think of the innumerable little households where the young husband gloats over Sweet Alice and her babies and still tells her fond and foolish nothings that warm her heart.

I like to think of the pairs that have held loyally together through sun and storm, of the two that are grandparents now, but still find no hours so full of content as those they spend together and apart from the world.

This love is the best; the love that is weathered and beaten; that has been assailed by every outward enemy and all inward weaknesses, but still holds and glows; the love that death itself cannot slay, the love that lives on yonder in the unknown, as sure and eternal as the God who gave it, who wrought it, this miracle of miracles.

The President Unconvinced

President Wilson is said to have found no reason in any representations that have been made to him for a change in the policy adopted with regard to the Huerta government in Mexico. His determination to consider this as a moral question is admirable.

It is hard to believe that other nations have sought to force the administration into another course, and it is said in Washington that reports of pressure brought to bear have been greatly exaggerated. It would be, indeed, a fine piece of presumption for any country to represent to the United States that refusal to recognize the existing government in Mexico was ground for complaint.

Ambassador Wilson, when he reaches Washington, may be depended upon to endeavor to persuade the president that interest urges and honor permits the recognition of Huerta. Mr. Wilson was promptness itself in representing to Washington the wisdom of such procedure. Madero was not laid out for burial before a recommendation of Huerta's government from Mr. Wilson was laid before the secretary of state. It was hardly less enthusiastic than the recommendation Huerta submitted of himself.

Mr. Wilson may be persuaded of the wisdom of his opinion, but the viewpoint of the American resident in Mexico City is not one which embraces the issue nationally. It is purely local, even if not purely selfish.

The United States can confer no benefit on Mexico and obtain none for itself in recognizing as a government one reeched by duplicity, treachery and assassination.—Chicago Tribune.

Worry Is Diseased Thought

(Collier's Weekly.)

Concentrated thought is virtually irresistible. All the vast edifice of modern science and industry is obviously the product of thought, much of it of our own time and observation. The birth of an idea in the human mind is clearly the one and only dawn of empires and revolutions, of engines, philosophies, trade routes, civilizations.

To class worry under the head of thinking, therefore, seems a glaring sacrilege. Yet worry is thought, for all that—diseased, impure, adulterated thought. It means an admixture of emotion, of the worst of all the emotions—fear—into one's thinking. Instead of concentrated, clear, serene thinking on the problem in hand, worry is thinking, muddled black with fear. It is about as helpful as clapping the brakes upon wheels toiling uphill.

Yet all the world is laboring under that Egyptian heaviness of the wheels and almost every spirit is a spirit in the dark prison of fear. But once we grasp this truth clearly, once we convince ourselves that we can rid our thought of emotionalism, of fear, the day of our deliverance is at hand. And the substitution of encouraging, healthy thought, of new channels among the worn ruts, is a powerful aid.

There may be failures and backslidings, as is customary in all mortal effort and human endeavor. But fear is weakened like a choking thing, and more and more clear and unimpeded becomes our thinking. For we realize at last, once for all, that where thinking cannot help us, fear certainly will not. And then we have worry by the throat.

Quips and Quiddities

Pat was over in England working with his coat off. There were two Englishmen laboring in the same store, so they decided to have a joke with the Irishman.

They painted a donkey's head on the back of Pat's coat and watched to see him put it on. Pat, of course, saw the donkey's head on his coat, and, turning to the Englishmen, said: "Which of you wiped your face in my coat?"

PUBLIC WILL BE WELCOME AT SUFFRAGETTE MEETING

Mrs. Peel Will Preside and Speakers Will Discuss Both Sides

Taft hall at 7:45 o'clock Tuesday night will be the scene of Atlanta's open suffrage meeting, when the suffragists and the anti's will be given a chance to expound their views to the public.

The meeting is to be held under the auspices of the Habersham chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and Mrs. William Lawson Peel will preside.

More than a dozen well known Georgians, who have pronounced views either for or against equal rights for women, have been selected as speakers, and the announced purpose is to instruct rather than to convert the public.

The meeting follows directly the meeting of the Georgia Woman's Suffrage association, and is to be another evidence of the increasing interest in the south in the woman's movement.

Dr. Percy J. Starnes, the organist, will open the meeting with several selections on the echo organ. The list of the speakers at the meeting, besides Mrs. Peel, will include:

R. H. Hardeman, Dr. A. M. Highlett, H. H. Swift, J. L. Pope, W. L. Cosgrove, Louis Wisdom, J. R. Smith, Mrs. W. H. Felton, Mrs. M. L. McLendon, Frank Rice, Mrs. Frances Whiteside, R. A. Broyles, Mrs. Nellie Peters Black, E. B. Black, Mis Rosa Woodberry, J. J. Spalding, Samuel Lumpkin Olive, Leonard J. Grossman, Ernest Neal, Mrs. M. C. Hardin, Mrs. M. T. McWhorter and Mrs. S. E. Cunningham.

WOODWARD WON'T PAY THE DICTOGRAPH BILL

Says Whole Procedure Was an Outrageous Piece of Dirty Work

"I am not liable to waste the city's money by signing any check in payment of the dictograph warrant," said Mayor Woodward Tuesday morning.

"I said before," he continued, "that the installation of that dictograph was an outrage, a dirty piece of work; and they'll have to show me where the city has derived benefit from it before I'll sign any check for it. It's an expense, anyway, for which no provision is made."

Though the mayor declined to commit himself definitely in the matter, it may be inferred that he will not sign the dictograph check.

Chairman A. R. Colcord of the police committee has been asked to approve the warrant which is for $19 this including only the cost of installing the instrument. He has stated that he will approve the warrant which will then go to council after which it will rest with the mayor.

GRAND UNITED ORDER WINS ODD FELLOWS' SUIT

The Grand United Order of Odd Fellows of America has won out before the state supreme court in its efforts to obtain a permanent injunction against the use of the name "Ancient Order of Odd Fellows, Leeds Unity," by an organization in Macon.

The case upon which the supreme court based its ruling was that of Emory et al vs. the Grand United Order of Odd Fellows, etc., et al. In the Bibb county superior court the "Grand United Order of Odd Fellows of America" had obtained an injunction against the "Ancient Order of Odd Fellows, Leeds Unity, and the members of the latter organization had excepted an appeal.

Passing upon the case, the supreme court holds that the lower court did not err in holding that the name of the defendants' order was "substantially similar" to the name of the plaintiffs' order, and a "colorable imitation" thereof.

COMMITTEE VOTES FOR WOMEN LAWYERS BILL

Stormy Debate Ends in Favorable Report for Admitting Women to Bar

After a hot discussion, general judiciary committee No. 1 of the house Monday afternoon voted 9 to 3 for the passage of the bill introduced by L. J. Cooper, of Ware, to allow women to practice law in Georgia.

Representative Barry Wright, of Floyd, led the fight for a favorable report on the measure, and was seconded by Samuel L. Olive, of Richmond, and H. B. Moss, of Cobb. Women, they declared, were admitted to all vocations in Georgia except law, and there was no reason why they should be barred from one when members of their sex took part actively in others.

R. B. Blackburn, of Fulton, opposed the bill on the grounds that a woman's place was at home and not at the bar of justice, with all kinds and conditions of criminals.

Your Town's Regeneration

DID you ever think that city officials can materially lower the death-rate of their towns if they would do it?

Serious thought, that.

We want to talk to the officials of towns or cities that need better sanitation.

So long as disease has a wide-open chance at your town, neither you nor your neighbor is safe. And if you can prevent it, you are criminally negligent not to try.

The sewerage system of your town--is it correct? How about it?

Is the water supply pure? How about the chances for a summer's run of fever that may sweep right through your population?

Somebody says it is wiser to spend time arousing town officials to do their duty than to spend it comforting the bereaved mothers whose little children are taken from them because of insanitary conditions in the town.

We think so, too. That's why we are talking to you after this fashion.

Our specialty is the designing and installing of correct systems of sanitation for towns and cities.

We also feature lighting and paving plans.

We do the whole thing, planning, estimating, financing; constructing, operating. That is, if you want all that done; or we do any part of the work.

We are Municipal Engineers with a record of more than 400 contracts carried out successfully and without a break.

We want you to write to us and let us show you how it will pay your town to put in modern improvements. Write us your needs.

FAVORABLE CROP ADVICES CAUSED BREAK IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 1 to 13 Points Down From Previous Close

NEW YORK, 11 a.m. (Special wire.)—Cotton opened steady with prices 2 to 5 points higher on better Liverpool cables than expected and continued dry weather reports from the western belts, cotton turned easier under selling for Liverpool account. There was also a little pressure from local sources based on a belief that the Government condition over the far west meant a speedy breaking up of the drouth in Texas and Oklahoma. Further heavy showers in parts of Alabama and Georgia interfered with crop reports in those sections. Temperatures were generally moderate over the whole belt.

Late in the forenoon the market was steadier on the official forecast of fair weather in the west-central belt, which led to some covering and toward the midday became dull awaiting the weekly weather report.

Estimated receipts today 3,000 bales.

During the early afternoon the market acted steady in sympathy with a less favorable weekly weather report which called attention to the need of rain in the west-central belt, but around 2 o'clock prices dropped off to yesterday's closing basis after the general break in July at New Orleans.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, July 22.—Cotton futures opened steady at 4 points advance, in sympathy with unsatisfactory cables and the weather map which showed a considerable amount of rain in the eastern half of the cotton region. After the call the market stood 3 to 4 points down. This was reflected by the general opinion that predicted fair weather generally for the western half of the belt, but the overnight rains continued showery weather for the eastern half. Moderating rains set in at the end of the first half hour of business prices were 3 to 4 points over yesterday's close on the most active months.

As the morning grew older the market became irregular. The new crop months showed a disposition to work higher while the old months under offerings which the gossip of the ring said came from Wall street. There were also attempting operations looking toward a squeeze in July. The market was very strongly influenced on the weekly weather summary which made it plain that serious unworthy conditions were prevailing over a considerable portion of the belt and especially in many counties of Texas and Oklahoma. After the first hour prices were on the distant months were 1 to 2 points over yesterday's close. Trading in the actual was slightly stout at a net loss of 2 points for the day.

At noon the market was quiet with thinner crops 1 up to 1 down compared with yesterday's close, while July stood 7 points down.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS

Morris H. Rothchild & Co.: We advise purchases on such markets as yesterday's.

Logan & Bryan: It may be well to refrain from pressing the selling side at the close.

A. Norden & Co.: We see no reason to change our view that for the present purchases should be made on such temporary set backs as we had yesterday.

Hayden, Stone & Co.: Until it is known that the plant in the southwest has received enough moisture to carry it through to maturity it will not be confidence on the short side.

Hubbard Bros. & Co.: It is advisable to sell only on advances.

COTTON SEED OIL MARKET

NEW YORK, July 22.—The market for delivery was the center of attraction in the cotton seed oil market this morning. Demand from sharers and refiners indicated by the scarcity of offerings served to force that month up 10 points, and at 8:30 o'clock it was still firm. There was little doing in the late positions.—Persaull.

HAYWARD & CLARK COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, July 22.—The weather map presents very favorable conditions over most of the entire belt with a splendid rainfall in the eastern states, particularly in Georgia, South Carolina and parts of Alabama. Indications are for increasing cloudiness and probably showers in the central and western states, while in the Atlantic ports today the tendency will be for clearing weather.

Liverpool was also five points higher, but failed to advance. Spots were unchanged, sales 10,000 bales. Private advices from Paris, Tex., report good rain that extended to Gainesville. News points to the following from Brownwood: Heavy showers throughout the section relieved the intense heat of the past few days. Rainfall was heavy in many localities.

Ballinger, Tex., also reported rain and at Ardmore, Okla., over one inch July 20. The market opened lower on the favorable weather but there was no pressure to sell owing to anticipations of a bullish unfavorable weather report at 11 a. m. and a disposition to advance the market reflected by New York quotations.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 22.—A stick of dynamite in the hip pocket of Martin Funk exploded and blew him to pieces when he fell today during a playful wrestling match with his brother in a tent where the Funks were camping near Germantown. The brother's left hand was blown off.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says: In the face of lower temperatures, a spreading rain area and a more rapidly increasing early movement than last year's the yesterday's market reflected a character of steadiness that surprised both bears and bulls. The opening advance of 2@5 points on Liverpool cables was a little premature and was soon lost. Offerings were not pressing and contract markets reflected a will of their own, which did not harmonize with the talent's interpretation of the things crop and trade-wise. Over in Texas "active ginning operations", are now beginning to be reported and since one rainy day has been definitely accounted for, On July 29 last year only twelve mote bales had been ginned. Much talk has been heard of bull sweeli in Mississippi, but the fact that the farmers in that section are highly prodiserved Delta country have had very little to say on this subject. Private reports from the great Atlantic states have been enjoying just about as favorable weather as could be expected, the suggests the probability that foreign consumers are awaiting developments in the near future situation at Washington in hope that prohibitive legislation will be largely averted from July 12 to 20 average.

Splendid crop chart closely to fair in central and western states. Cloudy, Alabama and Georgia. Cooler all over belt. Splendid rains parts of Alabama, Georgia, Carolina, rains in Georgia, Carolina, some showers in Texas. Indications are for slightly significant, threatening weather in central and central belt, tendency downward in Atlantics.—Keller.

Forecast: Generally fair tonight and Wednesday generally cloudy, showers in southeast portion tonight and Wednesday; light easterly winds on the coast.

Alabama—Tonight and Wednesday fair.

Georgia and South Carolina—Texas—Tonight and Wednesday generally fair.

Oklahoma—Tonight and Wednesday fair.

Louisiana—Tonight and Wednesday generally fair; light easterly winds on the coast.

Brownwood, Tex., says: Heavy showers throughout section yesterday relieving intense heat of past few days. In many localities two rain.

Memphis, Tenn.—Considerable rain was reported in Georgia and southern Alabama with decidedly lower conditions everywhere. Market has been steady. Trade fears conditions will come later. Weather without rain and there is none in sight and sentiment is more friendly in the market. Spot sales continue large 31 Liverpool, with prices unchanged. Spots steady. GRAIN GOSSIP

Chicago Inter Ocean says: The wheat market is regarded as largely a merchandising proposition. It was noticed that many of the leading bears who sold early were buying on close. Today's close is a fair index of the situation long of oats were closing their trends yesterday. One line of 250,000 corn was bought in and the oats sold. Corn is a lot of this business opening. There are also a lot of shorts in September who are long in December in corn, who have not started to cover.

Hartlett, Frazier & Co. say:

Wheat: We believe the bulls and bears will are inclined to think prices will gradually harden.

Corn: We can see nothing but higher prices. Our opinion the market is in strong position with a comparatively small line of interest and more new buying apparent.

Provisions: Packers say there is helping prices and while there is more or less realizing, we look for buying on breaks. Prices increasing.

Snow wires from Omaha, July 12. Corn crop in Nebraska, counties of the Platte and west of Lincoln already badly hurt and in the line of storm. Portions of the Republican Valley reported some damage by hail. Temperatures generally fine. Some scattered showers today. Winds last week killed leaves on trees from Hastings to Crete, corn showing white and now beginning to tassel at four feet. East of Lincoln small damage but some white heads showing. Big crop prospects. Feel that in case of hot winds the crop will be so much ahead during last week's hot-ering weather but many tassels now coming white. Section of state covered is a rectangular shape than northern Kansas.

Kansas: Hutchinson says: have corn advices from largest corn counties in Kansas, which normally produce 200,000,000. Reports from Atchison county show loss of 30 per cent; Leavenworth 50 per cent; Harper 50 per cent, two reports from Harbor loss 60 per cent, two reports from Sumner 75 per cent, two reports from Dickinson loss 100 per cent; Jewell county loss 65 per cent; Republic 50 per cent; Cloud 50; Kingman, loss 95 per cent; Sedgwick, 75 per cent; Shawnee, 50 per cent; Butler, 35 per cent; Mitchell, 75 per cent; Washington, 80 per cent and Reno 80 per cent.

Kansas City says: The corn and wheat region bulletin shows no rain. Maximum temperatures ranged from 85 to 98. Scattered light rainfall at Campbell, Minn., 20; Crookston, 24; Grafton, 24; Fargo, 15; Grand Forks, 34; Jamestown, 20; Winnipeg cloudy, 56; Duluth, clear, 58; Glenwood cloudy, 60; hard rain this morning. Minnesota: Duluth, 72; Harvey cloudy, 60; light shower last night.

Grain Belt says:

HE LIVES ALTHOUGH HIS NECK HAS BEEN BROKEN

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Surgeons in a local hospital today are marveling at the remarkable vitality of Edward H. Elwood, who has lived thirty-six hours with what has been diagnosed as a broken neck. The diagnosis was superficial, but, in order to determine positively, an X-ray examination will be made today.

Elwood, while a member of a bathing party at a summer resort on the Potomac river on Sunday, dived from a boat and struck a submerged obstruction. He was rescued in an unconscious condition and when it was found that his condition was serious he was hurried to a hospital here. As the result of his injury the young man is partially paralyzed.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS ACTIVE AND BROAD

Canadian Pacific, Beet Sugar, Atchison, Illinois Central and Pennsylvania Up

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 22.—The market opened with a show of considerable activity but interest soon waned on account in Missouri Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio and several of the Harriman issues. Some of the leaders, including Steel and Reading were unchanged. Trading in the railroad list generally was confined to a continuance of professional operations.

Realizing and short selling followed the opening rise and the market became heavy. Features of weakness included New Haven convertible 6s, which fell over 2 points, and Wells-Fargo, which added another 5 points to yesterday's loss of eleven, selling at 95. Government 2s and Panama 2s were quotably lower.

Stocks were inclined to react today after an opening that promised a continuance of the recent advance. London sent over a higher level of prices and reports from that center were accepted with reservation.

Of the leaders Canadian Pacific alone manifested some strength. Steel, Reading and Southern Pacific were heavy features. The rest of the list was generally dull and unchanged to fractionally lower. Sugar, Atchison and Illinois Central were the only exceptions to the general heaviness.

The weakest issues were the New Haven 6 per cent convertibles and stock, the former declining almost 3 points and the latter 2 points for the stock. Bonds, particularly government issues, were firm.

The noon hour marked by considerable activity in the shares of the independent steel companies, notably Republic Iron and Steel, and usual statement showed a large gain in net profits for the first month of the current fiscal year, seven points and the common 2¾.

Reports of another break in negotiations between the Harriman lines and their employes served to further restrict operations in the railroad list. Trading became slightly more active on the long side advanced Reading and Steel the most. The response elsewhere was disappointing. Prices weakened. Canadian Pacific rose 2½ points, Reading and the absorption of minor specialties ceased.

Closed easy.

The recent warm weather has caused a rush of summer visitors to the mountains and the Kanuga attendance is growing daily. There is a large reservation list for August.

Kanuga's reputation as a "Paradise for Children" has received an impetus this year, due to the presence of Miss Marion Robertson, of Norfolk, Va., as play leader for the smaller children. This is probably the only resort in the south, and one of the few in the country, that has a children's building and a playground equipped with modern play apparatus especially designed for the wholesome out-of-door recreation, planned and supervised by a playground leader.

August, however, will be the month of most interest to everyone, and plans are now being made for recreation activities to which all are looking forward. There are to be a number of trips of Camp Fire Girls under Miss Robertson's direction.

Mr. C. R. Weeks, a national Boy Scout commissioner, will spend August at Kanuga and will give his entire time to the leadership of boys of boy scout age. Council fires, "hikes," over-night camps on the nearby mountains, swimming and boating contests, etc., are all in the program.

Arrangements are being made for the golf tournaments for the week beginning August 18. There will be the usual open tournaments for visitors in addition to the various contests among members. A number of last year's golf enthusiasts are already here and the course, now acknowledged to be one of the best golf courses in the south, is in daily use.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

Picture gowns have become quite the fashion, and as they are a caprice of the day, women do not take them seriously, and therefore experiment with them at home. The result is good.

No one knows just from where this fancy sprung; many have attributed it to the stage, some to the revival of the Louis XVI fashions. Whatever the source from which the idea came, the fashion itself is distinctly acceptable in mid-summer when women wish to look cool and attractive at one and the same time.

Every woman cannot wear a picture gown; it may not be easy to convince her of this fact, just as it is almost impossible to persuade her that a huge picture hat is not becoming. It is not only the slim who can wear these fanciful frocks; stout women can also do it, for the reason against them is not one of flesh so much as of facial features and expression. One needs a certain piquancy to carry off a gown or a hat that is away from the conventional.

When women take this to heart there will be fewer serious mistakes made in dressing. Certain clothes belong to certain women, and they should never depart from them.

The Dolly Varden Frock.

It is difficult to know what to call the new kind of gowns. They might be styled frocks from fan-land, for they seem of have stepped down from the French and Spanish fans that have been used for centuries. There is something of Watteau, something of Boucher and Pompadour, in the figured frocks of this summer. They are made with slightly full panniers, narrow satin skirts, covered with lace flounces here and there, and the square neck is outlined with a high white lace ruche.

Maybe it was the fashion for the ruche that brought in the gown. Maybe it was the fashion for red heeled slippers which brought in the gowns, or possibly it was just the yearning of women to be pictorial according to an earlier idea. Whatever the reason, here are the gowns, and the majority of them are called by the simple name of Dolly Varden.

The material is usually of flowered crepe or voile which the shops now sell in large quantities and which come in artistic patterns. The usual gown made in this fabric is not like that which I refer, for we have had these with us for six months, made along ordinary lines, all of the same materials.

The modern frock is made of two materials with the addition of net or lace and sometimes a colored velvet. For instance, if one has a round bodice and a full pannier of figured crepe, the skirt may be of raspberry cloth, with an oyster satin, with two lace flounces underlined with deep pink or turquoise blue satin ribbon.

There will be a wide fichu of white lace and tulle which fits closely around the neck at back and sides and falls down the front in two loose folds. Under the collar at the back is run a ribbon of blue or pink, and the elbow sleeves are finised with five-inch ruffles of lace with a bow of ribbon at the top.

Take this costume and add to it a pair of pink or blue stockings, and high-heeled slippers with red heels, and you have a dancing gown of rare charm.

Red-Heeled Slippers.

It was only natural that the incoming of these foolish and effective little frocks should have brought with them the slippers with red heels of the Louis XVI period with their immense buckles in front and their slashes of red behind. There is a new thing of red heel, too, which is used on these black slippers and it makes the foot look about three inches shorter than it is.

One would say that it was impossible to walk in if one had not witnessed the ability of women to get along in yard-wide skirts and Spanish heels that put them on stilts. We have learned during the last three years that there are few limitations to what women can do in the name of fashion; if ever these Louis heels are adopted by the majority of American shoemakers, women will wear them, and not only turkey-trot in them, which is all very well, but they will go shopping in them, which is all very wrong.

The Evening Story

THAT BITTER TASTE

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

It was the first hot day, and to Christiana's mind it was far too early in the season for a hot day. She sat on the porch and scowled. Not a soul had passed the house all that afternoon. "I hate it all—the farm, this stupid old house, and—Thad. Yes, I'm even growing to hate Thad," she muttered.

Thad had gone to town that morning

"What makes you even think of such a thing?"

to get a load of feed. He was always buying feed. It seemed to her that the cattle and horses always demanded fodder just at the time when she most longed for something. Now she not only longed for, but actually needed, a light frock and a net hat. Sometimes she felt that Thad had more heart for the cattle than for her.

"Thad seems to think," she thought, "I should grow my clothes the way they do. If it hadn't been for him I'd have been earning my own things and getting what I wanted. He came, and I thought he was the only thing that mattered. I was willing to do anything he wanted me to do. I didn't know what a farm was like. But I do now, and I hate it!" I thought I was tired to death standing behind a counter, but now I wish I was right back there, I do! At least I'd have a little money to spend as I wish. I never went without anything but what I do here in my life!"

She was too angry to cry. Tears were impotent, anyway. She had found from trying that they did not have much effect on Thad. There was a hard streak in him which needed more than tears to melt. The more she said the more silent and firmer Thad grew. She had spent herself trying to master him that morning, and in the end he had driven off to town quite as he had meant to do in the buggy and let her spend some of the money as she wished. And in the end he had conquered. The cows must be fed if they were to give milk, Thad said. To that Christina had reasonable. Reasonable! Christina rocked so fast at the remembrance of that note in Thad's voice that the old cow dog lying flat and fast asleep on the other end of the porch lifted his head and looked at her reproachfully. Then a hen cackled, and the dog, with a leaped up, and, scrambling off the porch, bounded across the yard toward the pond. Christina knew away that he had heard something; that she also was hearing something. First came a woman's voice, entreating yet commanding by impatience, then the sound of smart chwacks, followed each time by a protesting bleat, and finally the scurry of feet in the road. A dreary calf trotted meekly into view, followed by the old dog, grinning and victorious. Some distance after, the dog followed a woman, helping herself along by a stick. She wore a limp calico wrapper and a sunbonnet.

"How do, Mis' Howland!" she called, genially. "How do? Tolerably hot day!"

"Yes, it is," replied Christina coldly. She hoped the old creature would go on after the calf.

Instead of taking the hint the woman turned in across the yard. "I guess I'll sit down with ye a spell," she said amiably, as she took off her sunbonnet and began to flap it in an effort to cool herself. She was very brown and ugly and wrinkled and her worn and soiled wrapper seemed a mere sack for holding her bones and sinews together. She sat a moment panting and squinting down the road after the calf and dog. "She'll drive him home all right," she continued, "and I thought I'd let him do it, seeing he was willing."

Christina felt more than annoyed at the intrusion. The old woman was one of her neighbors and a typical farmer's wife of that locality, and as she looked at her she seemed to be viewing the result of a long process of deterioration, such as now apparently threatened herself.

"Maybe it began by her husband spending all his money for fodder," she thought. "Maybe she used to like hats and lawn dresses as much as I do. And when she didn't get them she gave up. I shan't give up."

The old woman turned her head and looked up at Christina with a gathering light in her shrewd brown eyes. "How do you like farming?" she asked.

"I like it!" Christina's tone told nothing.

The old woman's scrutiny made Christina blush. "You must excuse me for looking at you so hard," she said quietly. "But you're so kind of pretty I couldn't help it. Besides, you make me think of somebody." Her thin chest heaved as she stared out across the fields with vistas of recollection in her eyes. Suddenly she aroused herself. "You've never been over to see me," she remarked.

Christina shook her head impatiently. "I don't go to see anybody. I work all the mornings, and the afternoons I—rest. There's a lot to do."

"Your man's a splendid young fellow. He thinks a sight of you. He ain't one to say much, but you can see that."

"I hope so." There was no mistaking the bitterness in Christina's voice. She laughed dryly. "I guess he likes his cattle better, though," she added.

"Now, what makes you say that, child?" The old woman hitched nearer and lifted one hand and laid it upon Christina's knee. "What makes you even think of such a thing?"

Christina was moved. After all, talking relieved more than any amount of mere thinking. "I'll tell you, Mrs. Finley," she said. "There's things I want—things I've always been used to having, and instead of Thad's giving me money to get them he goes off and takes it all to buy feed for the cattle. I've always earned my money. I don't like this having to beg a man for a cent." Her voice sank. "I guess I made a mistake in marrying him. I began to wish it hadn't. Love! What's love when the real things of life creep in? You can live without love. You can't live without some other things."

She had spoken explosively. The old woman meekly listened, patting the girl's knee. As Christina ceased she nodded reflectively. "I see," she said. After a moment she went on slowly. "I guess I'll tell you something since you seem to kind o' need it. I was young once myself. That was some time back—a good many years. I was young and I was pretty. I lived up there in the town you came from. I worked in a millinery store, and I always had the prettiest clothes a girl could wish for. I earned 'em honest and I had 'em. But there come a time when clothes wasn't everything. I wanted something bigger and better'n I'd ever known. I got it in Jim Finley." She paused. "He was a farmer—something like your farmer. He come into the store one day to buy a hat for his ma, and I helped him pick it out. So we got acquainted. And we were married right away. I went to live with him on his place. Do you see it over there?"

She flapped her sunbonnet in the direction of a gray roof or two showing above a cleared hill. The peonies place in the section. Thad called it. Christina had never been there.

"Well, it was kinda nice them days," the old woman continued, "I went to it in the spring of the year, just about this time. I thought I was going to be awfully happy. I didn't know any more'n you do about farming, but I had Jim. That seemed plenty. It wasn't long before I begun to think different. The first time the season changed and there wasn't no money for new clothes I got pretty disgusted. I missed the goings-on in the city. Why, nights I used to sit out and look at the stars and listen to the peepers till I was just about crazy. I don't suppose Jim understood. He'd been used to such all his life, and they suited him. We begun to have words. We had a lot of 'em. I got so I hated the land and the house and the cattle. Seemed though every cent Jim got was wanted somewheres. There was a bin allus empty or something give out somewhere. I couldn't have a thing I wanted. I got madder and madder. 'You hold on, Jennie,' he'd say. 'We'll get out of this some day. I'll be on my feet next year and then you'll have what you want.' He really believed that. I didn't. I lost faith and heart both. The city seemed to call—call—call. And one nice day—like this—I answered. I ran away from Jim and went back." She drew her hand from Christina's knee and clasped it with the other hand. "I got a job in a store where I thought he wouldn't be able to find me. But he did. He hunted till he did. And he begged me to come back—he just about went on his knees. But I had my first week's pay and a brand new hat and I hadn't got over being mad yet. I told him to go and leave me alone. He went, finally, and do you know what he did? He left me money. He went right straight home and hung himself."

She waited. Christina had started and turned pale. "Oh, poor woman!" she gasped.

"No; poor Jim! I drove him to it. I found out quick enough what I'd done. And then——" she gulped. "Ever want something, you know you couldn't have—fairly hanken after it? Well, I hankered after Jim. And I couldn't have him. He was gone. But there was the place where he'd been. I could have that, so I went back to it, and I've stayed there ever since. I ain't never been happy, but I've learned some few things, and I guess maybe I lost beauty. It is not to bleach or change the original color, and should not be confused with such. Jim knows. I hope he's forgiven me. I've tried to make him in the only way I knew. And it's been a good many years."

She rose stiffly and put on the old sunbonnet. Then she turned and looked into Christina's eyes. "When you get that bitter taste in your mouth again, honey," she said kindly, "you just think of Jim and the cliff over yender for you to look at every time you get upset about anything. It ain't near as bad holding out for a few years as it is living a hull lifetime on nothing but a memory, and that a sad one. Well, I see your dog's coming back. I guess he's got tired of tending the calf. So I'll take my turn. By, honey."

Christina sprang up and, catching her by the shoulders, kissed her twice. She was half laughing, half crying. "We're going to be great friends," she said, tremulously.

"Well, now, I'd expeciate that. I'm sure," replied Mrs. Finley with something like enthusiasm.

As Easy To Keep The Hair From Turning Gray As To Keep The Scalp Clean

AND there is no reason in the world why you should hesitate to restore to your hair its lost color and vitality, if it is fading and turning gray, any more than that you should foolishly refuse to use a remedy for dandruff or any other scalp trouble.

Sickness, nervousness, impoverished blood or deficient scalp nutrition may cause premature grayness; sometimes it is hereditary. Whatever the cause, gray hair adds from 10 to 20 years to the age, and a young woman, even 25 or 30, with very gray hair is passed as old.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Peter Rabbit stared at the two soft, gentle eyes peeping at him from behind the big fern just back of the sunning bank in the far corner of the Old Pasture. He had so fully expected to see the angry face of the big gray old rabbit who had made life so miserable for him that for a minute he couldn't believe that he really saw what he did see. And so he just stared and stared. It was very rude. Of course it was. It was very rude indeed. It is always rude to stare at any one. So it was no wonder that after a minute the two soft, gentle eyes disappeared behind one of the great green leaves of the fern. Peter gave a great sigh. Then he remembered how rude he had been to stare so.

"I beg your pardon," said Peter in his politest manner, which is very polite indeed, for Peter can be very polite when he wants to be. "I beg your pardon. I didn't mean to frighten you. Please forgive me."

Peter waited for a reply with the greatest eagerness. You know it was because he had been so lonesome that he had left his home in the dear old briar patch on the Green Meadows. And since he had been in the Old Pasture he had been almost as lonesome, for he had had no one to talk to. So now he waited eagerly for a reply. You see, he felt sure that the owner of such soft, gentle eyes must have a soft, gentle voice and a soft, gentle heart, and there was nothing in the world that Peter needed just then so much as sympathy. But though he waited and waited there wasn't a sound from the big fern.

"Perhaps you don't know who I am. I'm Peter Rabbit and I've come way down here from the Green Meadows and I'd like very much to be your friend," continued Peter after a while. Still there was no sound. Peter peeped from the corner of one eye at the place where he had seen the two soft, gentle eyes, but there was nothing to be seen but the gently waving leaf of the big fern. Peter didn't know just what to do. He wanted to hop over to the big fern and peep behind it, but he didn't dare to. He was afraid that whoever was hiding there would run away.

"I'm very lonesome; won't you speak to me?" said Peter in his gentlest voice, and he sighed a deep, doleful sort of sigh. Still there was no reply. Peter had just about made up his mind that he would go over to the big fern when he saw those two soft, gentle eyes peeping from under a different leaf. It seemed to Peter as though all his life had he seen such beautiful eyes. They looked so shy and bashful that Peter hardly dared for fear that he would frighten them away.

After a time the eyes disappeared. Then Peter saw a little movement among the ferns and he knew that whoever it was was stealing away. He wanted to follow, but something down inside him warned him that it was best to sit still. So Peter sat just where he was and kept perfectly still for the longest time. But the eyes didn't appear again and at last he felt sure that whoever they belonged to had really gone away. Then he sighed nother great sigh and felt more lonesome than ever. He hopped over to the big fern and looked be.ind it. There in the soft earth was a footprint, the footprint of a rabbit, and it was smaller than his own. It seemed to Peter that it was the most wonderful little footprint he ever had seen.

"I believe," said Peter right out loud, "that I'll change my mind. I won't go back to the dear old briar patch just yet after all."

Optimism

(Cincinnati Enquirer.)

Cheer up, cold boy! Don't dump your joy because the day is glum; pick out the best and quit the rest. You hear you start to hum. When in a jam don't cuss and damn, but grin and wait it out; the joys love hope, it's powerful dope, and puts the gloom to rout. So don't despair, turn down dull care and leave him to the mob. The sun ain't dead, he'll leave his bed and soon be on the job.

HAPPENINGS IN LONDONTOWN

The Duke of Norfolk, the "first Catholic layman in England," has given considerable offense to many of his coreligionists by signing Sir Edward Carson's appeal to the Unionists of Ireland. His grace has been bluntly advised to come down from his pedestal.

The boorish manners of a wealthy foreigner who spends a great deal of his time in this country is being severely commented upon in sporting circles. He is likely to receive an unwelcome reminder of the fact that "manners make the man" when next he appears on a race course.

Notwithstanding all attempts to put down gambling in the West End it still goes on as much as ever. In a surreptitiously appointed flat not far from St. James street play for very high stakes is indulged in nightly, and if the police were to make a raid they would be surprised at the "haul" they would get in their net.

Another sad story has been brought to light during the last few days concerning a headmaster in a London school. After a careful investigation of all the charges he was given three days in which to resign, failing which he was to be dismissed. He was further informed that if he tendered his resignation he would be appointed as an assistant master "in boys' schools only."

WIFE TURNS UP HUSBAND TO NEW ORLEANS POLICE

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, July 22.—How a wife's jealousy caused her to furnish information which led to her husband's betrayal to the police, was revealed today when Detective Charles F. Mellen, of New Orleans, left Chicago for the southern city with Jules A. Zatfrain, thirty-two years old, who is charged with larceny involving $3,700. Zatfrain was arrested here yesterday.

Zatfrain formerly owned a tailor shop in New Orleans and obtained $3,700 worth of cloth from a Chicago firm without paying for it a year and a half ago. Later Zatfrain disappeared, but subsequently was seen in New Orleans in company with another woman. The wife traced the couple to Chicago and notified the police.

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

Congressman Edwards Would Hasten Appointment of Democratic Postmasters

Congressman Charles G. Edwards, of the First district, who is spending a few days at his home in Savannah, is a bit impatient over the administration's delay in deposing Republican postmasters in Georgia. The congressman would hasten the day when Democrats will be in charge of the postoffices both in this state and throughout the country.

Commenting upon the situation he says:

"You know the policy of the administration is to let the Republican holdovers stay in office until the terms for which they were appointed expire," said Mr. Edwards. "I think this is bad policy and so does the entire Georgia delegation, but the ruling has been made and it seems it will be adhered to. For this reason the filling of presidential postoffices will be slow. I have eleven such offices in my district. The term of the Statesboro postmaster expired July 20 and that of the postmaster at Waynesboro expires July 23 of this year. I will have these vacancies filled promptly, I am sure. The others must wait."

Prospective Congressional Candidates Said to be Plentiful in Baldwin County

Although Baldwin county has been a part of the Tenth congressional district but a few months, several of its well-known citizens are said to entertain congressional aspirations.

Judge Carl Vinson, of the Baldwin county court, has announced that he will be a candidate next year to succeed Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick, and news comes from Milledgeville that Solicitor General Joseph E. pottle, of the Ocmulgee circuit, and Colonel J. D. Howard are considered as probable candidates.

Congressman Hardwick has not yet indicated whether he will seek re-election. Should he be in the race he will no doubt be successful, for he is conceded to have the strongest and most loyal following of any man in the Tenth district.

Friends of Colonel John T. West, of Thomson, have urged him to be a candidate in the event Congressman Hardwick does not run, and with Mr. Hardwick out of the way there is a probability that Representative J. J. Harris, of Washington county, will enter the contest.

Colonel W. W. Lambdin Favors Creation of Hardeman County

Colonel W. W. Lambdin, of Waycross, one of the ablest lawyers in south Georgia, was in Atlanta a few days ago to lend his influence to the movement for the creation of Hardeman county with Alma as the county seat.

The bill providing for the creation of Hardeman county has received a favorable report from the house committee on constitutional amendments. It proposes to take 212 square miles from the southeastern portion of Appling county, twenty-three square miles from the northeastern corner of Ware and thirty square miles from the northern part of Pierce.

The people of Appling county, from which the largest area of territory is to be taken, apparently indorse the Hardeman county bill, and the grand jury of Appling has passed resolutions commending it.

Barrow County Bill May Be Passed on Thursday.

It is very probable that the house bill creating the new county of Barrow will not come up for passage in the senate until Thursday. The bill has been reported on favorably by the committee on constitutional amendments and a resolution has been introduced making it a special order for Wednesday.

But the senate committee on rules in discussing the matter Monday decided that inasmuch as by the calendar the bill would come up Thursday anyway, that there was no necessity for making it a special order. It will probably be left to its regular place.

Both sides in the fight on the bill claim a victory. Certain it is that the measure will be more hotly contested in the senate than it was in the house. The supporters of the bill are claiming thirty-five votes, six in excess of the necessary two-thirds. Each is working hard to win, though, and only the roll call will tell.

Persistent Perseverance Characterizes Judge Fite

Judge A. W. Fite, of the Cherokee circuit, heartily concurs in that old maxim: "If you do not succeed at first, try, try again." Several days ago the judge called a mass meeting at Cartersville to pass upon certain resolutions relative to the changes in the government of that city.

The meeting came off according to scheduled time, but Judge Fite's opponents were in the majority and he was unable to get a favorable vote on his resolutions.

Unfeared, Judge Fite called another mass meeting for Monday morning at which he got through his resolutions, calling upon the representatives of Bawtow county in the legislature to introduce a bill providing for the Cartersville board of education to be increased from three to five members and be elected by the people; and a bill to establish a recorder's court in Cartersville. Another resolution opposed any reduction in the corporate limits of the city of Cartersville.

When Judge Fite makes up his mind that he is right, he goes ahead, and he is known throughout the state as a hard, effective fighter. Even those who do not agree with him concede this as a fact.

Attorney Kent's Pathetic Fight For Reinstatement Seems Hopeless.

There's something pathetic in the appeal which W. B. Kent, former Georgia football star, of Wheeler county, makes to the general assembly for the enactment of a law which will restore to him the right to practice law in Georgia.

Mr. Kent was disbarred in 1910 in the superior court of Montgomery county, the disbarment proceedings containing twenty-one charges of unprofessional conduct.

The bar association of the Oconee circuit has passed resolutions against his reinstatement, and there is little likelihood that the legislature will interfere. Bills for his relief have been introduced in both the house and senate, but the indications are that neither house will look with favor upon these measures.

Similar measures were introduced at the last session of the general assembly and failed to pass.

Mr. Kent charges his disbarment to political persecution, but those who oppose him vigorously deny this charge. They contend that Mr. Kent's professional misconduct has been such as to justify his disbarment, and they take the position that the proper course for Mr. Kent to pursue would be to apply to the courts of his county and circuit for a reinstatement rather than to ask the legislature to pass a special law for his sole benefit.

In the resolutions of protest passed by the Oconee Bar association appears the following paragraph: "The courts of a man's county and circuit, which have time to inquire into the facts and a man's qualifications and character, may be in a better position to determine the question of a disbarred attorney's reinstatement than the members of the general assembly."

Mr. Kent is quite popular among the people of his section. This fact is attested by his election to the legislature from Montgomery county after his disbarment and by his election to be ordinary of the new county of Wheeler, also by a petition urging his reinstatement which bears the signatures of more than 2,000 of his fellow citizens.

Marathon Race of 105 Laps to Be Ridden by Motorcyclists

Rain Map Stop Motor Events; Marathon Race

In Case Postponement Is Necessary on Tuesday Races Will Be Run Off Wednesday, Program Is Best Ever

The expected rain has arrived and at the hour of going to press the big motordrome races set for Tuesday evening seem out of the question. Whenever Jack Prince plans a big racing meet old J. P. is expected to-butt in, but often the visit is delayed for a bit and the races run on scheduled time, but today the expected has come to pass.

It was planned to give the fans a big twenty-six-mile marathon race Tuesday evening, but unless the rain checks up a bit there won't be a chance of putting on any one of the events that have been so carefully planned for the public. Of course if the rain holds up any time during the morning and the sun makes its appearance the track will dry quickly and the events can be run, but at 10 o'clock this looked a bit unlikely. It is planned to run Tuesday's program on Wednesday evening in case a postponement is necessary.

Atlanta fandom has never had the pleasure of witnessing any athletic event that carries with it the same excitement that is sure to bob up in a marathon motorcycle race which will have ten riders on the track at the same moment and take them around a quarter-mile track as many as 105 times. This is the highest degree of excitement, every fan wishing to see chances taken.

Besides the big marathon there is scheduled a mile against time by Tex Richards, a big motordrome purse event and a match race between some of the stars.

Here is the program in full:

Tex Richards against time. One mile. Present record held by Eddie Hasha and Morty Graves. Time, 0:38 4-5.

MOTORDROME SWEEPSTAKES.

One mile to qualify for two-mile final. Two to qualify in each heat and three in fastest heat.

First Heat—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields, No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards.

Second Heat—No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, George Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

Harry Glenn vs. Harry Schwartz. (Special match race.) Two miles; best two out of three heats.

Final Heat of Motordrome Sweepstakes—Two miles.

Second Heat of Special Match Race—Glenn vs. Schwartz.

Third Heat of Special Match race—If necessary.

Big Marathon Race—(Twenty-six miles 385 yards), ten riders to compete. Each rider will have to ride 105 times around the track. Winner to receive cash prize of $500.

Contestants—No. 1, Morty Graves; No. 2, Harry Schwartz; No. 3, Billy Shields; No. 4, George Lockner; No. 5, Tex Richards; No. 6, Freddie Luther; No. 7, George Renel; No. 8, Jock McNeil; No. 9, Henry Lewis; No. 10, Harry Glenn.

BALL TOGS TO MUSEUM

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 22.—"Honus" Wagner's uniform and his palmless glove may be placed in the Carnegie museum here when the famous player retires from the diamond.

Dr. W. S. Holland, director of the museum, believes that baseball is something worth telling posterity about.

Many ancient games are represented at the museum by interesting relics, and Dr. Holland has announced that the institution would like Wagner's baseball accoutrements when he retires, believing him to be the most wonderful ball player ever known.

Walks Forty-three Miles

EL ROY, Wis., July 22.—Edward Payson Weston made an even 43 miles Monday, arriving at El Roy last night.

A message was received en route from Governor A. O. Eberhart, of Minnesota, tendering him his summer cottage for two months.

BUNTS AND BINGLES

BY JULIAN MURPHEY

Speaking of loudness, Bulgarian ties and Umpire Pat Wright's voice art still coming down the stretch neck and neck.

PIRATES GOING STRONG.

At last the Pittsburg club appears to have come out of its trance and is playing real baseball. Prior to the start of the season every self constituted baseball judge picked the Fred Clarke outfit to be right in the running with the very vest. Until the past couple of weeks these judges have had to seek shelter in the backwoods. Now, however, they are out with the old "I told you so."

There is no denying the fact that Pittsburg has a grand ball club. Fred Clarke has more than once proven his ability as a manager and his team appears just as good at hitting and fielding as in the past, while the pitching staff is a great deal stronger than in years when a better showing was made. The only cause yet advanced for the poor showing is the slowing up of Hans Wagner and this seems a bit out of the ordinary when the Dutchman is hitting around 340 and fielding in his usual clumsy yet sensational style.

The Pirates may continue the winning streak but there isn't a chance for the team to jump to the lead in the National race as long as the Giants continue to pile up more runs than the opposition. John McGraw has taken hold of the first position and evidently thinks it belongs to him. He just wins all the time while some of the other clubs often drop a game or so.

"Slang is a funny thing," remarked Heinie Groh, of the Cincinnati Reds, recently. "The hotter a ball is hit the more likely the writers are to say that it hal 'whiskers' on it. And yet the older a player is and the slower he gets the more liable are the scribes to say that he ought to retire and let his "whiskers grow."

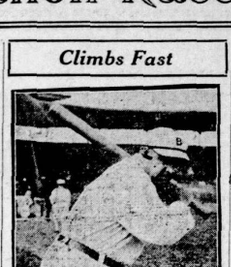
FIGHTING MANAGERS LEAD.

Right now three of the hardest scrapping managers in the league—Billy Smith, Johnny Dobbs and Kid Elberfeld—are right in the thick of the fight for the Southern league pennant, while the other two clubs that have a look in—Birmingham and Chattanooga—have the quietest of leaders in Mike Finn and Carleton Molesworth. All of which goes to show that different kind of tactics go with different ball players.

Billy Smith, Kid Elberfeld and Johnny Dobbs are the kind who like to go out and raise a bunch of fuss and let the multitudes realize that they are around. They are always trying to rattle the other fellow and at the same time keep their own players in a good humor. With Mike Finn and Molesworth it is just the opposite. Finn rarely says a word to either rivals or his own clan, while Moley is just about as quiet. Both know the game, however, from A to Z, but believe in teaching it to their men in secret and letting them look out for themselves when on the field.

To a rank outsider who looks at a harness horse speeding along with hobbles on, the thought is bound to arise, "Gee, whiz, how fast that nag could go if his legs weren't all tangled up in those straps."

Climbs Fast



CARLETON MOLESWORTH, Manager of Birmingham team, which is right now in the thick of the fight for a good position.

Journal Team In Big Game

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 there will be two games between Kampers Grocery company and the Atlanta Journal teams. These games are going to be corkers, as they have a bearing on the final standings of the clubs in the Grocers' league.

The Kampers team is greatly strengthened, and they are fighting to keep out of the cellar, while, if the Journal team cops both ends of the tray, they will be on the top of the heap.

The small admission of 10 cents will be charged to witness the double bill.

Saturday will work the first game, while Simmons will twirl the second for the Journal. The manager of the Kamper's club has not yet announced his twirler. The game will be played at Ponce de Leon.

Errors Aided The Downfall Of Crackers

Price Was Not Given the Very Best of Support and Blew, Conzelman Hurled Good Ball After Taking Slab

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 21.—One bad inning, and the game had gone the wrong way for the Crackers. The Atlanta team was unable to solve the delivery of Rube Kissinger, and had the whitewash brush applied to them in splotches.

Price was touched in the second, when Schweitzer opened with a single to left. Abstein shot one past third for a hit, and Shanley rolled another at Wally, who was slightly rushed and tossed the ball past Joe Agler, allowing the Cheese and Stein to cross the platter. Seabough was safe at first when Smith errored for a second time. Kissinger sacrificed and Love singled, scoring Shanley. Conzelman then took the biff. Baerwald sacrificed, scoring Seabough, and Love was caught in a chase between home and third, ending the agony.

A tall times Atlanta was held safely by the pitching of Kissinger and the jam-up support which he received.

Baerwald, too, was right there in cutting off hits in the pinches. He received six put-outs in the territory which is usually marked a single to right.

Welchonce and Shanley also figured in sensational outfield plays.

HOW CLUBS PLAY TODAY

NEW ORLEANS, July 22.—Southpaws Kroh and Sommers, of Chattanooga, are scheduled to pitch the double-header against New Orleans today, with Street catching both games. For New Orleans, Walker and Brenton are to toe the mound, Adams and Angermier going back of the plate. The weather was threatening.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 22.—A slow rain early this morning made prospects gloomy for playing the first of the Birmingham-Montgomery series. If it clears up, Manager Molesworth announces he will pitch Foxen, with Mayer behind the bat. Manager Dobbs designated Case and Donahue as the local battery.

MOBILE, Ala., July 22.—A doubleheader between Mobile and Nashville is scheduled for this afternoon, the first game being called at 2:15 o'clock. Hogg will pitch in the first for Mobile, and Berger in the second, with Schmidt receiving. Williams and Beck will work on the mound for the visitors, with Gibson behind the bat. The weather is again threatening.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

The Montgomery club lost while Mobile was rained out, giving Montgomery only a four-point lead on the clubs. Birmingham climbed up on the Crackers by whitewashing the Billies while the Crackers received the same dose.

The Giants and billies both, went another notch above their competitors by winning. The Pirates lost.

The Athletics also climbed in percentage and the Naps and Senators still are in close competition for second place by reason of their victories.

Boehling Now Tops Hurlers

Lefty Boehling and Seaton are leading the slabmen of the two big circuits, Boehling with an average of an even thousand and Seaton with an average of .778. Boehling kept his unbroken string of victories Sunday by defeating the White Sox.

The second string men are Walter Johnson in the American with a percentage of .800 and Mathewson in the National with .762.

Al Demaree, the ex-Southern leaguer, is just behind Christy with a percentage of .750.

Thompson to Mount Slab

MEMPHIS, Tenn., July 22.—After having the brush applied in the first game, the Atlanta crew will try conclusions with Memphis again this afternoon.

Liebhardt and Snell will do the work for Memphis, while Smith will probably use Thompson against the Turtles.

Thompson has an unbroken winning streak of four games and wants to annex a Turtle scalp to the others now on his string.

SMITH WORKS SMALL GAME

CHICAGO, July 22.—Pitcher Clarence Smith, of the Chicago Americans, has confessed that he was the "unknown" who pitched the Coulon Athletics to victory on the North Side last Sunday morning. Then in the afternoon he relieved White and pecked four innings against Washington without a hit or a base on balls.

Smith, who is open to a fine or suspension if the National Commission considers his case, told Manager Callahan, of the White Sox, that working for semi-professional teams on the side is a common thing among major league pitchers, especially in the East, where no games are played on Sunday.

STARS OF ONE DAY

Mike Balenti: Broke his streak by batting for St. Louis Monday, taking Shotten's place for one inning. He was up once and failed to hit.

Little Journeys to the Diamond

The Scout

The scout is the Sherlock Holmes of the national craze. He glides through the brush of baseballs underworld on rubber-soled shoes, beginning his work when the cactus leagues open.

Some scouts spend their time looking over young ball players, while others consume their energy in cussing the feed and the five-foot beds of the hotels on the barnstorming circuit.

The scout drifts into town in the garb of a drummer. He doesn't pretend to know anything about baseball, but he always blows in when the team is at home, and usually just a day or two after Red Horriden, the shortstopping wonder of the league, has poled five hits and handled fourteen chances without a kick.

The candy drummer—or whatever brand of drummer he may be—inquires casual like what's in town in the way of amusement and expresses surprise when told that the Blues are at home and on a winning streak. He admits of that he hasn't seen a ball game in years and probably will be somewhat rusty on the fine points of the game.

However, he obtains a seat that affords a good view of the short field and displays an unexpected interest in Red Horridon, apparently watching every move of the sorrel-beaned marvel. Occasionly he makes some pertinent comment that doesn't exactly jibe with his statement that he was rusty on the points of the national mania.

Returning to the hotel that night, the taffy drummer writes his employer. Among other things, he says:

"Nothing to Red Horriden. He's weak on ground balls and couldn't tag a runner with a paddle. He murders a fast ball, but won't get a hit a week when the pitchers get next to the fact that he can't hit a curve ball with a spade. He's fast enough, but gets a bad start. Keep off. Let some other sucker be the goat."

Two months later Red Horriden breaks into the big show on the rival club. He startles the experts by his great play and daring work on the paths. The following year he's the talk of the league and a regular member of the Busters.

The first successful scout is said to have been a dove, sent forth by Noah, the manager of the Ark, in the Antediluvian league.

Game Is Slow While Fandom Wants Action

Would Be Easy to Hurry Through the Battles Without Killing Efficiency—All in the Hands of the Umpires

Late suppers and engagements are a matter of course this season, owing to the very slow ball being played in all the Southern league cities, and there appears to be no effort to hurry up the frays. Probably never before have so many long drawn out games been played, and it is an exception when a regular nine-inning game is wound up in less tha na couple of hours.

In the two major leagues the fans last season put in strenuous objections to the long games being played in their circuits with the result that officials of the leagues took up the matter and now, real, fast baseball is turned out. Such a move in the Southern would be quite welcome and would tend to increase the patronage.

Here i nAtlanta most all of the games have been of the long variety. Practically every battle takes two hours or more, all of which makes it 6 o'clock before the fans get away from the park and it is an hour later when they reach their home. The answer is a cold supper or a very mad cook, either of which is quite bad enough. And when such a condition of affairs can so easily be remedied it makes fandom all the madder.

The matter of hurrying a game is left almost entirely with the umpires. They can rush a game through or they can allow the players to kill a lot of valuable time. Either way it is easy and a little instructions from league headquarters might prove a valuable asset in the rushing of the games.

By rushing a game to completion is not meant to hurry it to such an extent that bad ball will be played and there is not at all necessary. Often fast games develop and are played and are good ones, but then again the players are slow in coming to the plate to take their turn at the bat; slow coming in from the field at the end of an inning and the hurlers kill a lot of time in preparing to deliver each ball. All this kind of rot is unnecessary and should be done away with. Should the umpires rule this end of the game with an iron hand there will be a better attendance and everything will run along more smoothly.

The Southern league is a fast organization and turns out a mighty good baseball, and there is no use in allowing it to become backward in the one respect of turning out these slow games.

Cobb Is Anxious To Quit Detroit

BOSTON, July 22.—Despite his $12,500 salary, Ty Cobb is dissatisfied. He would confess a change that would make him a member of a team other than Detroit, he wrote to a friend, which letter was received here today. Discussing the report that he was to be traded for Speaker, of the Boston Red Sox, Cobb said that he would like very much to play in Boston, but did not think Boston would part with Speaker.

"There are two other American league cities in which I would like to play," he said.

Wood Hurts Finger; Is Out of Game

BOSTON, July 22.—Joe Wood, star pitcher for the Boston Americans, will be out of the game for some weeks. Examination of his injured right thumb under the X-ray today showed that there is a crack in the end of the big bone and indications are that a piece of the bone has been chipped off. Unusual care is being taken in the treatment of the injury to guard against stiffness in the joints, which would put an end to Wood's usefulness as a pitcher.

THE DAVIS CUP.

"England's cliffs are white like milk,
But England's fields are green;"
So sings a well known English bard
Who's ferry to the scene;
But while we're glad to grab this tip,
Excuse one final poke—
Arise and tell us, gentle bard,
How is her tennis stroke?

He adds—"I know an English elm
Beside an English lane,
That calls me through the twilight and
The miles of misty rain"—
I wonder if he also knows
In peering down or up,
An English player who can trim.
McLoughlin for the cup?

England vs. America again for the Davis cup. The gods of high Olympus be praised that whoever wins the cup stays out of Bulgaria and Russia.

THE DECIDING DUEL.

This Davis cup melee in a way is the deciding clash of the international summer. The Big Four retained the polo cup and got the jump. But of our American golfers no one was able to saunter beyond fifth place. This leaves it an even break to date, although Great Britain as a nation might claim an edge through the skill of her Wilding.

But in the main we should say that it was now all even in so far as the international conclave was concerned. If America wins it will be two out of three in polo, tennis and golf. If England wins our famous Uncle by the name of Samuel must be content with a percentage of .333, thereby leaving him halfway between the Yankees and the Reds.

THE YANKS AND THE PENNANT.

No, this is no prediction, but the Yanks are not forced to win the pennant to be a party intermingled with its ultimate destination.

Back in 1911 they finished eighth and yet were big factors in the flag race. They beat Detroit that season, fifteen games out of twenty-three and twice started Jennings downhill. Then they succumbed to the Athletics and helped push the Mackmen in front.

The same dope carries this season. They have beaten Cleveland steadily upon her home grounds with six of the first eight games played packed away. Against the Athletics they have won one out of fifteen. Reverse these two counts and Birmingham today would be beak and beak with the alert Connie.

Last season the Yanks contributed more games to Boston than any all. So while for three years the Yanks have been out of the nomination other club. The Red Sox only won nineteen out of twenty-one. That's they have subscribed liberally to the winning ticket. Thy are getting to be the Warwicks of the N. P., which translated means the pennant makers of the game. They can't win themselves but they still insist upon a strident voice in the party councils.

THE ZEIDER-CHASE AFFAIR.

A number of eager bystanders have queried us to the true merits of the Zeider-Chase-Callahan-Chance embroglio.

If Chance is correctly quoted he received the worst of it. If Callahan knew that Zieder was out of shape he should have broken the news, even though gently, to the other end of the deal. If Callahan entertained no knowledge of the justly celebrated bunion he was hardly at fault. It was then merely the fortune of war.

AT ANY RATE.

Lives of trained stars remind us
How to start an awful blow.
When departing, leave behind us
Knowledge of a bunioned toe.

The Athletics have been reported to be upon the verge of splitting apart three times this season, but in some way have managed to struggle feebly along and make a noise like a regular ball club at sparsely scattered intervals. If they are where they are after cracking three times we yearn to know about where they would be after a consistent spurt.

Cleveland out—Yankees to the Athletics.

In the meanwhile Pittsburg is poised for her invasion of the Polo grounds. Ye, who have "crucial" serieses to use, prepare to use them now. There may not be another chance.

And then again—well you know baseball.

HARVARD BEST AT WINNING IN ALL SPORTING BRANCHES

BOSTON, July 22.—The wearers of the Harvard crimson excelled on the intercollegiate athletic field for the academic year of 1912-13. Out of sixteen possible athletic championships the men from Cambridge won four outright and divided honors for the fifth. Harvard triumphed in football, in addition to dividing the lacrosse title with Johns Hopkins. Since Johns Hopkins declined the Harvard challenge to play off the tie for the lacrosse title this might reasonably be awarded to Harvard, but when the Harvard challenge reached Baltimore the southern team had disbanded, and was under no obligation to play off the tie.

The University of Pennsylvania scored first in three championships and therefore ranks second to Harvard, with Yale, Cornell and Princeton tied with two championships each. For purposes of computation each championship is regarded as a single point, which would make the score of the eight universities figuring as follows: Harvard, 4 1-2; Pennsylvania, 3; Yale, 2; Princeton, 2; Cornell, 2; Syracuse, 1; Columbia, 1; Johns Hopkins, 1-2.

Not only did Harvard win outright more championships than any of her rivals, but the crimson athletes finished second in one of the major sport championships they did not win, besides making a uniformly high record in the many minor sports. In rowing Harvard certainly deserves to rank third, while in track athletics her team did finish second. In baseball the crimson beat Yale in two out of three games, and while the championship of the diamond is given to the blue on the season's record the crimson deserves to rank second or third. As further distinction for Harvard the crimson beat Yale in three out of four major sports. The crimson won in football, baseball and rowing, leaving Yale supreme only on the track, but Harvard made some amends for this by beating out Yale in the I. C. A. A. A. A. track championships. It was a fat year for Harvard and a mighty lean one for Yale.

NO DISPUTING ROOM.

There isn't any room for dispute over the majority of the championship titles here awarded. In practically all of the minor sports there were associations which arranged schedules that left no doubt as to the competitor winning first place. In the four major sports—football, baseball, rowing and track athletics—this was possible only in track athletics, but in the three others the supremacy of the teams to which the honor is awarded was sufficient to leave no room for dispute.

Athletes Hold to Titles At Big Championship Meet

Reputations were made and lost with bewildering rapidity at the recent national A. A. U. championships, but among the dozens of great cinderpath champions who showed their wares at the big Windy City meeting there were three whose work in the track and field events stood the acid test of the hardest kind of competition.

Caroll B. Haff, of the University of Michigan, Dan Ahearne, of the Illinois A. C., and A. M. Richards, of Brigham Young university, Utah, went into the "Nationals" with great reputations, and came through the big competitions still possessing them.

Haff is one of the fastest men developed in the colleges in recent years. For two years running he has run the quarter-mile at the intercollegiate games in 48 2-5 seconds—a feat never performed before by any runner. Haff easily qualified for the final heat of the 400-meter race at Stockholm last summer, but he was not quite in shape to battle successfully against the great brand of running shown by Charley Reidpath and Hans Braun, of Germany.

Dan Ahearne, holder of the world's record for the running hop, step and jump, despite a temporary retirement, was as good as ever in his favorite event at Chicago. Ahearne is one of those slender Irishmen who remain good for years. The chances are that he will still be jumping to records ten years from now. Dan is not a pound heavier than he was five years ago, and he has not lost an ounce of his great springing power.

Athletic experts have criticised more than once the jumping style of Richards, the youth from the Mormon country, who won the world's high jumping championship at Stockholm last summer. Richards is awkward about clearing the bar, but he clears it, and that's the most important thing. Last summer on the Olympic trip some of the coaches suggested to Richards that if he would change his style he might do even better. "No, I won't try anything new," he answered. "I can do 6 feet 4 inches the way I jump and that's good enough to win any place." Before the games at Stockholm Richards predicted that 6 feet 4 inches would win the Olympic high jump. "and I know I can do it," he added. His winning jump measured up 6 feet, 3 7-8 inches.

Three Selling Races For Circuit Meeting

One will be for 2:15 pacers and the others for 2:24 trotters and three-year-old eligible to the 2:20 class. MATERIAL FOR CHAMPIONS APPEARS TO BE BIT SCARCE

NEW YORK, July 22.—Now that Willie Ritchie has taken a secure grip on the lightweight title, there does not appear to be much chance of any of the present champions being displaced for some time to come. New material in all the classes is scarce. From bantamweights to heavyweights there are scarcely half a dozen new-comers who threaten to become dangerous for the present leaders.

Bantam Champion Charlie Coulon is in the most apparent danger of being ousted. But Coulon appears neither anxious nor physically able to defend his title against Kid Williams, his most dangerous rival. Eddie Campi is another who might be capable of relieving the Chicago midget of his honors. Neither Campi nor Williams, however, can be reckoned as newcomers. There is also Ledoux, the Frenchman, but he does not appear to threaten. There are no other good men in this division.

For all his unpopularity, Johnny Kilbane seems to be firmly seated upon the featherweight throne. Johnny Dundee is outgrowing the class, and in any case is scarcely of championship material. Of the new men Kid Julian looked rather promising for a time, but later developments have shown him to lack the essential qualities of a champion. None of the others has shown consistent form.

In the lightweight class there are many contenders, and among them a few who may outdistance the present stars. Most promising of these is Young Shugrue. Welsh, Cross, Britton and Murphy are all old in the game. None of these can be expected to show improvement over their present form. Shugrue, however, has his future before him. His work is consistently good. He has the steadiness that is only found in a boxer who has real class. He has no weakness that is apparent. He is fast, scientific, game, enduring and can both give and take a hard punch. That he is also a good ring general is shown by the fact that he soon learns the style of his opponents and does better work in the closing rounds than in the early periods.

DUFFY COMES FAST.

Jimmy Duffy, of Lockport, is another who may be heard from in time. Recently he won a foul from Jack Britton and still later held him to a draw. Duffy did not impress local fans by his performance here with Leach Cross, although he was in the lead on points when Cross was disqualified for fouling. But Duffy seems to be advancing rapidly and may be another Britton in time—a clever boxer who lacks a championship punch.

Sammy Robideau, of Philadelphia, is another who has a chance to develop. He was given a severe setback by Shugrue recently, but during the bout he demonstrated that he has many good qualities. Bud Anderson might be expected to get over his recent defeat and climb high if he were not getting along in years. Anderson is over twenty-five, which is rather a late age to learn new tricks.

Packey McFarland enjoys the distinction of being the only welterweight of class. But for some reason McFarland would rather mingle in lightweight affairs than reign in the division in which he rightfully belongs. There is no champion or any sign of one being developed in this class.

The same condition prevails among the middleweights. Mike Gibbons is the only one of the lot who knows how to fight, and the St. Paul phantom is too timid to make proper use of his remarkable skill. Out in California they have a clever boxer in Bob McAllister, who seems to be in a fair way of becoming prominent. Unfortunately McAllister is a little too heavy to figure as a middle-weight. He scales over 160 pounds and he is still growing.

The much abused white hope class has finally developed a leader in Gunboat Smith. Whatever may be thought of Smith's prowess his record undoubtedly entitles him to this position. Arthur Pelky, who means to put in a bid for the honor, is known to be entirely lacking in all that goes to make up a high class ring man. He has probably lost more bouts than he has won.

Byrne Proved Star Catcher

Few people know how Bobby Byrne, the Pittsburg Pirates' little third sacker, broke into the big league. He was originally a catcher, and even in his town lot days in St. Louis when he weighed from 125 to 130 pounds, he acquired a reputation for fameness through handling the smooky shoots of flingers nearly twice has weight. He did not carry any more aboridupois when he secured his engagement with Shreveport, La., but he signed up as an infielder and played third for Shreveport most of the time.

Byrne's work at Shreveport attracted the attention of friends of McCloskky, who had the Cardinals, and he sent a scout down to look Bobby over. He had met with an accident which deprived him of the free use of his legs, and he had one finger in a bandage, but it happened that when the scout arrived the Shreveport catcher had a wooden arm and was unable to stop the pilfering of bases by the opposing club. The manager asked Byrne if he felt that he could replace him. Bobby replied that he could not move without suffering excruciating pain, but that his arm was good and he could stop the base stealing. So he was substituted for the catcher who was on the blink.

When the Cardinal scout saw the condition Bobby was in and coupled it up with the excellent game he caught he concluded that Byrne had the stuff in him out of which major league ballplayers are made, and he signed him. Bobby's subsequent career is familiar to all the followers of the Pirates.

The gameness Bobby displayed at the outset of his career got him a meritorious promotion, and the gameness he showed will not bring him a demotion. Other players may be made "ball shy" by blows on the head, but not Robert. He figures that it may never occur to him again, but realized that it may happen in any game he plays. It was the same philosophy which caused him to remark while he was holding out for a higher salary this season that a player's career is short at best and that he owes it to himself to get all the remuneration he can while he is useful.—Exchange.

Carolina Race Neck and Neck

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 22.—The race between the six clubs comprising the North Carolina league grows more exciting as the end of the season approaches. Winston-Salem is leading with a percentage of .562 but is only two games ahead of Asheville, Durham and Raleigh who have a percentage of .533 and are tied for second place. Charlotte third in the race has a percentage of .488 and is only nine games behind the leaders, while Greensboro brings up the rear with a percentage of .400 and is only twelve games behind Winston-Salem.

During the past week Raleigh traded Outfielder Batts to Durham for Pitcher Yon and since that time Batts has been batting like a fiend while Yon has made good. Pitcher Belanger, of Raleigh, the premier twirler of the league, is ill from typhoid fever and will not be able to play for some time. Greensboro has signed two new pitchers, John Fox who played in the South Atlantic league last year and comes to the North Carolina club from the Virginia league, and Fry, who played with Anderson last year. The batting all around the circuit has been poor this season only five players going above the .300 mark at the close of the first half of the season. The season ends September 3.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Price of Throughbred Poultry

IN nearly nine cases out of ten when a buyer writes to a producer for prices on thoroughbred fowls they have but little idea of what they are asking for, and not one in ten is willing to pay the price that it actually cost to raise a thoroughbred fowl. Yet, they want something that has years of hard work and line breeding behind it, and while in the letter asking for prices they will state that only for family use is what they are buying them for, still they will go further and state that they want some first-class specimens and very often describe almost in full a perfectly marked standard colored bird that would be fit for show purposes. It will be a long time before the buyer will ever realize what it cost the producer to raise a good fowl, and to this class of purchasers only experience can teach them the worth of a bird. There is a lot of educational work in this line that will have to be taught the Southern people not only in poultry but in live stock, seed and in the value of farm lands before the actual price of different qualities can be realized. There are but few people who realize the difference between a good acre and an unproductive acre of land. The same can be said of seed, fowls, cattle and live stock of all kinds. Most chickens are looked upon as the common fowls, a mongrel and little, good or bad are supposed to be worth the same price, but things will have to change in this respect.

A good thoroughbred chicken, when properly raised, will cost not less than $1.50 at the very lowest estimation to feed and mature this chicken as it should be, to say nothing of the original investment of producing the right kind of parent stock to breed it from. It will cost 50c for a decent shipping coop to ship a single bird in and the cost of correspondence and other details connected with a good thoroughbred chicken makes it impossible for a breeder to realize any profit at all unless he gets from $3 to $10 each for thoroughbred fowls, a person only keeping a few chickens for their home use can well afford to invest $3 to $5 each in a few nice birds that have been bred to lay eggs and produce themselves. They can lay in two years enough more eggs than an ordinary bird would to pay this difference in price, to say nothing of the pleasure and satisfaction of having only thoroughbred chickens, and the difference in price that you would realize from two settings of eggs or a lot of nice chickens produced from them.

It is discouraging to many breeders to answer letter after letter from people who will write and ask for prices on fowls, and you sit down and describe or write a nice long letter giving full details of the single bird or a pen of birds and make the price as low as you can possibly afford to sell such birds for, and never hear from them again. This is one thing that discourages hundreds of people in the poultry and live stock business. It costs money to answer correspondence and to advertise and it takes time to fully describe different fowls and animals, and so few people, especially the inexperienced ones who write for prices on fowls, take into consideration this expense of correspondence and advertising but think that a good thoroughbred chicken should be sold at $1 or $2, practically speaking, the same price an ordinary scrub would be worth, produced by a party who never advertised, selected his chickens on path and attention whatever to line breeding and egg production of the careful breeder's flock of birds. It takes time and money to do this and a breeder must pay for it over and above the average scrubs or they cannot stay in the business. One reason today that so many poultrymen quit the game is because a majority of the buyers are inexperienced and not knowing the difference between good and bad, are not willing to pay a reasonable price for something good to start with. A person who has had experience and knows these things is easy to sell, and it is no trouble to close a trade with people who are familiar with and know these differences, but we have so few of this class of people in the south that it is a hard matter to find enough of them or convince the intended buyers the difference without writing a great many letters.

Yours very truly,

HAYDEN TURNS LOOSE DIGGS-CAMINETTI CASE

Resigns, He Says, Because He Must Be Absent From California Often

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Thomas E. Hayden, of San Francisco, assistant counsel for the government vs. Diggs-Caminetti in the white slave case, against whom vigorous protests recently were made on the ground that he was too inexperienced as a criminal lawyer to participate i nthe case, today tendered his resignation to Attorney General McReynolds.

Hayden asked to be relieved because, he said, he found he would be absent from California a good part of the trial. The case will be prosecuted by Attorneys Sullivan and Reche, the government's principal counsel.

completely at Monclova and federal detachments in the other cities cut off so that they cannot unite with each other.

A small detachment of federals from Monclova out on a scouting trip is reported to have killed its officers, left their bodies by the roadside and dispersed to the hills. Federals are forcing many residents of Monclova to join the army under stress of punishment for refusal.

The constitutionalist outposts are a mile from Monclova, which it is claimed is completely shut off from supplies.

CLAIMS AMERICANS PROTECTED.

Colonel Jesus Carranza said today that he believes Americans will find the reports about atrocities at Durango to have been exaggerated. Governor Carranza, he said, has given positive orders to protect lives and property of all foreigners and has punished severely all violations of these orders which his authority could reach.

At Sabinas, near here, there are 1,000 refugees from Monclova, most of them living in box cars on constitutionalist rations. So far as known no Americans are among these. Constitutionalist soldiers here appear well fed and are abundantly supplied with arms and ammunition.

ANOTHER FRENCH AVIATOR HURLED TO HIS DEATH

(By Associated Press.)

CHALONS, France, July 22.—Another French military aviator was killed today and his comrade badly injured while experimenting a new aeroplane at Mourmelon.

Lieutenant Gabriel was in charge of the machine, and Sapper Malarte was acting as his mechanician. As they started, the motor one of the wheels of the aeroplane caught in a rut. The machine toppled over and the motor fell on top of them.

LIVENS UP THE LIVER AND LETS YOU GO AHEAD AT WORK

Dodson's Liver Tone Acts Mildly But Surely. A Guaranteed Remedy for Grown-Ups and Children.

It is the experience of calomel users that if they take enough of the drug to have the desired effect, it seriously interferes with their work the day after. But this is the least important item, for calomel is a dangerous drug and often acts on the system violently!

Don't take chances with Calomel. Get a bottle of the pleasant, safe and perfectly harmless Dodson's Liver Tone, guaranteed to take the place of calomel. Instead of making you feel worse the next day it makes you feel better—and you actually are better for no remedy in the whole world livens the liver, regulates the bowels and really rejuvenates the system like this does.

You are the sole judge of its merits. Every druggist is fully authorized to hand you back your money without question if it fails to please you—and relieve you.

Remember, if you feel constipated and bilious, what you need is Dodson's Liver Tone. Fifty cents—any druggist. (Advt.)

BLOODY STICK NOW IN POSSESSION OF FRANK'S ATTORNEYS

ally come to trial on next Monday is the fact that already the majority of the state's witnesses have been subpenaed.

While Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey and the attaches of his office, who are serving the subpoenaes, refused to divulge the names of the witnesses or their exact number, it is said that about seventy-five witnesses, many of whom may not be used, will be called to the trial.

It is known that the defense has approximately 100 witnesses, many of whom will testify simply to the good character of the defendant in event the defense decides to put his character in issue. As counsel for the defense refuses to divulge any information relative to its plans for the trial, it is not known whether or not subpoenaes on the Frank witnesses have yet been served.

The reason for serving the witnesses a week before the date set for the trial is that after once have been served they will be in contempt of court in event they fail to appear in the court room when the case is called.

Although there is a strong probability of a postponement of the case, court attaches are going ahead with preparations to hold the trial Monday in the court room on the first floor of the old city hall building.

FANS INSTALLED.

Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor, who will be in charge of the court room during the trial of the case, has already ordered a dozen electric fans, which will be installed in the court room.

Like all trials the hearing of the Frank case will be public, but Deputy Sheriff Minor states that when all of the seats in the court room have been occupied the doors will be quickly closed in order that the comfort of the judge, jury and attorneys will not be jeopardized by an overcrowded room.

Judge L. S. Roan, who will preside at the Frank trial, is holding court this week in Covington, so the drawing of the venire from which the jury jurors to try Frank will be chosen, will fall to Judge John T. Pendleton, of the superior court.

The venire will be drawn in open court on next Thursday and it will precipitate another pre-trial clash between Solicitor Dorsey and Frank A. Hooper for the state, and Attorneys Luther Z. Rosser and Reuben R. Arnold for the defense.

The defense will ask that the veniremen be drawn from the grand jury box, and this move will be bitterly opposed by the solicitor general. The prosecuting official will ask that the venire, which will consist of 150 men, be drawn from the regular petit jury list.

The solicitor general is certain to take a strong stand against any postponement of the trial.

ONE GIRL PUTS UP 4,000 CANS OF FRUIT

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

VALDOSTA, Ga., July 22.—The reports from the Boys' Corn club and the Girls' Canning club show that the school girls in Lowndes county are putting up many thousands of cans of vegetables, fruits, etc., and that all of the girls together will probably put up more can goods this year than are usuall sold in all of the stores of Valdosta during the year.

One little girl in the Ousley district has already put up over 4,000 cans of fruits and vegetables. Two sisters in the Bethany district have put up 1,000 cans each, while all of the girls have put up from several dozens into the hundreds of cans. There are a large number of girls in all of the district doing canning club work. Their exhibits of canned goods at the county fair next fall is going to be a very fine one. The stockholders here are very highly pleased at the showing which is being made by the instructors in this department.

EDITORS OF GEORGIA GATHER AT LAGRANGE

Record-Breaking Attendance Expected to Gather in Interesting City

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LAGRANGE, Ga., July 22.—A record-breaking attendance of Georgia editors came into LaGrange last night in order to be on hand for the first meeting of the association this morning at 9:30.

About 125 delegates arrived last night and more are arriving on every train this morning, and it is believed that the attendance this year will run around the 150 mark or nearly double any mark ever reached in the history of the association.

The interest in the present meeting and large attendance is attributed largely to the desire of the editors of the state to see LaGrange and get information in regard to the remarkable progress of the town in order to transmit the information to the people of their home towns.

Governor John M. Slaton is expected early tomorrow morning and will be accompanied by Mrs. Slaton.

Among the other prominent visitors who are expected to arrive today, having *accepted the invitation of the La-*Grange chamber of commerce to be on hand ot the banquet Wednesday night, are: W. H. Leahy, genral passenger agent, Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad; St. Elmo Massengale, of the Massengale Advertising agency; Ernest Dallis, of the Dallis-Johnson Advertising agency; James R. Gray, editor of The Atlanta Journal; Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution; C. B. Rhodes, general passenger agent, Macon and Birmingham railroad; J. P. Billups, genral passenger agent, Atlanta and West Point railroad, together with some fifteen or twenty other visitors.

MOULTRIE, Ga., July 22.—The screams of her little son, Jack, brought Mrs. J. F. Monk from her home on North Main street to the front porch, where the child was seen in the top of a shade tree clinging to a live electric light wire. The power was turned off before the boy was seriously injured.

$250 to work for the passage of a tariff commission bill with a promise of an additional $10,000 if the bill was successful. Senator Reed declared himself against cross-examination, but proposed that questions be submitted to the committee. The point was not finally decided.

Mulhall today swore that he drew $500 from a Baltimore bank to be paid to Watson.

Mulhall swore that Watson had made the office of James A. Emery here his headquarters after he was defeated for governor of Indiana in 1908. Emery, Mulhall swore, was the "chief lobbyist" for the manufacturers. The witness declared today that former Senator Hemenway, of Indiana, occupied rooms next to Emery and that Watson was in one office or the other much of the time.

"WAR LIST" OFFERED.

A "war list" including six congressmen, said to have been marked for defeat by former Speaker Cannon and former Representative James E. Watson, was offered in evidence today by Mulhall.

Augustus P. Gardner, of Massachusetts; Gilbert N. Haugen, of Iowa; Victor Murdock, of Kansas; E. A. Morse, J. M. Nelson and Irvine L. Lenroot, of Wisconsin, were the marked six. Mulhall on March 17, 1909, wrote Secretary Schwedtman, of the manufacturers, to that effect.

Names of a dozen other congressmen marked for "war" and which have been included in other Mulhall lists, were included.

COLUMBIA PRESIDENT DISCUSSES THE CANAL

Urges Importance of an Understanding With the United States

(By Associated Press.)

BOGOTA, Colombia, July 22.—References to the Panama canal occupied a prominent place in President Carlos E. Restrepo's annual message today to the Colombian congress.

The president said that the approaching completion of the canal, the development of the country at large and the special interests of the coast provinces rendered datly more important an understanding with the United States.

"The Colombian government," he continued, "has refused the propositions made by James T. Du Bois, the United States minister, as not affording that reparation and satisfaction desired by the nation."

The new administration at Washington has inspired the Colombian people with great hopes. After the arrival of the new American minister, Thaddeus Thompson, the president hopes to submit satisfactory terms for a settlement of the Panama affair to this congress.

LINER CROSSES ATLANTIC WITHOUT AID OF SUN

LONDON, July 22.—Skies were so leaden all the way across the Atlantic during the past week that the steamship Kaiser Wilhelm der Grosse, which arrived at Plymouth yesterday, made the entire voyage by dead reckoning. The weather was misty and for the entire 3,000 miles from New York not a glimpse could be caught of the sun for nautical observations.

Primitive methods of navigation and wireless reports from other steamers served to keep the big liner from getting lost, however, and she reached port without mishap. Her experience, however, is a rare one.
